Complaining Is Waste.
Oranges and Gold.
Mr. Hoover, Dry Leader.
Lady Shoots Lady.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.

THIS PACIFIC coast goes along cheerfully, as well it may, with so many states in the Union helping to build up population and prosperity here.

It's against the unwritten law in this neighborhood to complain, carry an umbrella or wear an overcoat. Besides this is a land of "Everything can be done."

Mrs. Scudder, the potato chip queen, says:

"If Easterners that complain about business would put into their business the energy used in complaining, they would not need to complain."

She fries 100 tons of potatoes in a month.

NATURE RECOGNIZES no depression, and this coast has gigantic crops. The "Sunkist" co-operative organization of orange growers will ship 70,000 cars this year, compared with 50,000 cars last year. Thirty-three years ago they shipped 1,800 cars.

Tell your grocer he should sell his oranges cheaper this year. They cost him less at wholesale, and selling good oranges is public service.

THERE IS still gold to be found, if you know where to look.

At Alamos, in the state of Sonora, where Gov. Elias rules, an American, L. S. Patterson, bought an old mine from Filipe De Iza. After six months, discouraged, he sold the mine back to De Iza. The latter went to see what work Patterson had done, tapped a rock with a small hammer, uncovering a vein of gold now yielding $2,000 a ton.

But don't let that persuade you to buy stock in a gold mine. When it runs $2,000 a ton they don't sell it.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, as Mr. "R. C. H." of the San Bernardino Sun, observes, is now in command and leader of prohibition in the United States.

In a few words, the President said more about prohibition than the Wickersham Commission said in 100,000 words, and said it far more definitely.

He has made himself the leader of the drys in next year's presidential campaign, and if the drys have a majority, as this writer thinks they have, that may decide the 1932 campaign.

A LADY who lives in Oklahoma fired two shots into Miss Charlcie Cardell, aged 28, and Miss Cardell may die.

Jealousy sent the bullets on their way. Such incidents have been frequent since the day 40,000,000 years ago, when Mrs. Big Tooth split the head of a younger cave lady trying to steal away her husband.

A JEALOUS woman usually kills the other woman to save her husband. And that, although she doesn't know it, is done in obedience to atavistic impulse, to protect the children who need a father.

The jealous husband often kills his wife. That is done to protect his important self-respect.

It is easier than killing the man, and he can get another wife without trouble.

BISHOPS OF the English Episcopal Church decide that prayer by radio is good because it brings family prayer back into the British home.

Nevertheless, prayer broadcast, instead of being addressed directly to the Almighty by the individual, seems a little too scientific.

No radio is necessary to reach the throne of grace. Employment of the radio reminds you of the country clergyman who began his prayer: "Oh Lord, as Thou hast doubtless seen by the morning papers."

DR. HORNELL HART, of Bryn Mawr College, where many young women accumulate knowledge back of their high brows, tells parents that early marriages are usually failures.

Those married before 20 are 10 times more apt to land in the divorce court than others. Trial marriages fail because they are experimental and secret.

They fail also, although Dr. Hart doesn't mention it, because the man in such a marriage lacks respect and affection for the woman.

THE GREAT philosopher Plato would have women marry well past 30 and men past 50. But that depends on the breed and the individual.

The mother supplies her child's mental and physical strength. She should have children when her strength of mind and body is at the maximum.

The father supplies part of the child's mental ability. He should marry later, giving such brain as he has a chance to mature fully.

CLARA BOW JURY STILL LOCKED

Judge Orders Verdict Be Reached Today or Face Discharge; Daisy Hopeful

By LYLE ABBOTT
International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—Facing prospect of being discharged unless it reached a verdict today, the jury trying Daisy De Voe on charges of embezzling $15,300 from Clara Bow, the screen star, again was deadlocked in its third day of stubborn battle for agreement.

Always confident that she would never be compelled to pass through prison gates as a result of Miss Bow's theft charges, Miss De Voe passed from serene faith to almost exuberant joy today.

PLANS FUTURE

She was so sure the jury could not reach a verdict that she began mapping plans for her future.

In the event of a mistrial, that future may hold a second court ordeal for Miss De Voe in the next few weeks. The ex-secretary told friends:

"I am almost happy now. Of course I have suffered deeply during the weeks since this trouble came up, but I still think

CLOVER CLUB SLEEPERS ROBBED

Man Rifles Clothes, Flees With Cash After Grappling With One Awakened Victim

A man ransacked the Clover Club, exclusive bachelors' fraternity, 6744 Penn avenue, former residence of the late Ambassador Alexander P. Moore, early today, and escaped, chased by one of the members, with about $175.

The club is directly across the street from the home of Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

Twenty-four members of the club, which includes engineers and officials of the Westinghouse interests and utility companies, physicians and attorneys, were asleep on the second and third floors about 6:30 a. m. when the intruder entered through a kitchen window.

LOOKOUT SUSPECTED

Tracks on the outside indicated that a second man had remained in the rear yard as a lookout. They used a stepladder to reach the window, seven feet above the ground.

The burglar rifled pockets of the sleeping men, taking bills from purses and loose change which had been left on dressers.

Daniel F. Hays, Duquesne Light Company engineer, awakened by a noise in his room on the second floor, saw a large man rifling dresser drawers. Hays switched on a light and shouted.

INTRUDER FLEES

The intruder fled with Hays in pursuit, down the stairway and out through the kitchen door, stopping momentarily to turn off a light on the newell post on the first floor.

Hays reported loss of $21. H. E. Dralle, Westinghouse engineer, $70; S. H. Cowan, a Westinghouse official and club secretary, $40. Others in the club at the time were J. H. Clark and Lee B. Schmerber, Westinghouse employes; Dr. A. M. Torrance and Attorney W. D. O'Connor.

ANNA PAVLOWA DIES IN SLEEP

THE HAGUE, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Death had rung down the curtain today on the career of Anna Pavlowa, considered the world's premier dansuse. On January 31 she would have been 46 years old.

The trim and small ballerina whose graceful interpretations of classic dance brought her the acclaim of the old and the new worlds and the personal praise of various monarchs, succumbed to pleurisy a few days after contracting a chill while en route here from France.

Physicians strove in vain to save her, resorting finally to camphor injections to strengthen her weak-

Sproul Denied Radio; Walker Gets Permit

Wickershammers Turn Applesauce Into Bologna

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Wickersham investigation was so successful it's being investigated itself.

The Wickersham report was something like an army court-martial. The decision had nothing to do with the verdict.

We got an army court-martial in Camp Zachary Taylor in 1918. Five charges. Here's what happened:

First: Refusing to plant grass seed on commandant's lawn. Not guilty.

Second: Saluting an officer with both hands in my pockets. Not guilty.

Third: Double-timing a sick detail. Not guilty.

Fourth: Threatening to shoot

INDICT 2 FOES OF NORRIS

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Victor Seymour, former manager of the Western headquarters of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee at Denver, today was charged with perjury in an indictment returned here by a federal grand jury.

George W. Norris, Broken Bow, (Neb.) grocer, who attempted to oppose United States Senator George W. Norris in the Republican primary in his race for re-election last year, also was indicted on a perjury charge.

The indictments resulted from testimony given by the two men before the United States Senate campaign fund investigation committee here last fall.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—More indictments by the grand jury investigation in Nebraska into the activities of Republican leaders were predicted today by Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, when informed of the indictment of Victor Seymour for perjury.

Mary Garden Sings Role of Her Debut

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Twenty years ago Mary Garden made her operatic debut here in "Pelleas and Melisande," and last night she sang it again during the debut of another of her proteges, Barre Hill, 24, of Chicago.

Hill, who stepped in one night from a subordinate place in the ranks of the company into the place of "Pelleas," was acclaimed by the audience.

Senate Battle to Reveal Wickersham Secrets Harasses Hoover

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Reverberations of the Wickersham commission's amazing prohibition report continued to harass the Hoover administration on Capitol Hill today as the anti-dry bloc renewed its drive to shed more light on how the commission reached its conclusion.

The anti-drys, defeated in the first parliamentary clash over the report, were determined to learn whether Mr. Hoover influenced the commission to change a wet recommendation into an indorsement of the Eighteenth amendment. The anti-drys suffered their defeat when the Senate voted a $543,000 appropriation to place 130 more dry agents in the Department of Justice, in accordance with the commission's recommendation for a larger enforcement army.

The battle now centers on the Tydings resolution, proposing an inquiry into Mr. Hoover's connection with the final report. To this proposed inquiry is linked a demand for publication of all the secret evidence gathered by the commission on the subject of prohibition crimes and dry law en-

SECOND SPARED BY REPRIEVE

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Gov. Conley today granted a reprieve until February 20 to William Claude Adams, Mingo County, who had been sentenced to be hanged tonight in the state penitentiary.

Adams, who had said he was resigned to his fate of death on the gallows, was convicted of slaying his wife's aunt and also was accused of killing the wife and her mother in Logan County.

Emory Stephens, 24, of Logan County, who was reprieved yesterday by Gov. Conley pending further investigation of his case, had offered to remain in the death house with Adams if the warden would permit. Stephens had been in the death house, also under sentence to die tonight, for the killing of a taxicab driver. Execution of his sentence was stayed until February 20.

APPOINTEES ASKED FOR LOYALTY

Governor Demands Oath to Obey Constitution and Uphold All His Policies

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—All persons who apply to Gov. Gifford Pinchot for appointments, effective today, must sign a pledge to "defend and obey the Constitution of the United States and loyally support the policies approved by the people of this commonwealth in the election of 1930."

Gov. Pinchot said the appointments now effective or in the course of being made effective through issuance of commissions will not be affected by his decision to have all future appointees pledged.

PREVIOUS PLEDGE

Eight years ago when Mr. Pinchot assumed the office of governor he required all appointees to pledge themselves, in addition to upholding the constitution, specifically to observe the Eighteenth Amendment.

The pledge will be signed in writing by all prospective appointees hereafter, the Governor said. It will be in addition to the usual oath of office administered to officials of the commonwealth which includes a pledge of fealty to the Constitution.

The Governor announced that the pledge will not be exacted from appointees to such positions as notaries public, justices of the peace and industrial police prior to February 15 as most of the appointments to such posts prior to that date are now going through the state machinery.

Applicants for all other positions, however, must sign the pledge before an offer of an appointment will be made, he said. Failure to sign the pledge will mean automatic elimination from

Madrid Fears Riots On King's Fete Day

MADRID, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—Although Madrid was in holiday dress today with business suspended and flags flying in celebration of King Alfonso's saint's day, a more somber note was added by heavy police guards ready to quell further outbreaks such as occurred yesterday, when 3,000 students quit classes at the University of Madrid and kept police busy.

W. H. Boyd, Actor, Granted Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—William H. Boyd, stage and screen player, obtained a divorce in Superior Court from Clara Joel Boyd, New York actress.

Boyd charged desertion and that Mrs. Boyd "was temperamental and often became abusive." They were married in Greenwich, Conn., May 15, 1920, and separated September 15, 1925.

Roosevelt's Sagamore Hill Home Saved From Fire

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Theodore Roosevelt's beloved Sagamore Hill home was threatened by fire last night.

From one of those huge fireplaces—of which he wrote "in them the logs roar and crackle during the long winter months"—sparks ignited the roof and started a small blaze. Mrs. Roosevelt was notified by an employe and telephoned an alarm.

Eight volunteer fire trucks puffed up the long hill overlooking Long Island Sound and extinguished the flames with chemicals in a few minutes. The damage unofficially was estimated at $1,000.

Mrs. Roosevelt remained within the house during the excitement, and when it was over she served coffee and cake to the workers. All she said was "Just a few shingles were burned off my roof." Nevertheless, 300 persons came running in fear that the famous domicile might be destroyed.

On a sloping hillside and surrounded by a narrow iron fence, Col. Roosevelt is buried near the home he loved in life.

Rudy Vallee Gets Something To Remember Boston By

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee, crooning idol of thousands of radio listeners, was greeted with two over-ripe grapefruit during a performance at the Metropolitan Theater last night.

It was the final performance of the opening day of a week's engagement, and Rudy was in the midst of "Something to Remember You By," one of his characteristic melodies. Without warning, the fruit came hurtling down from the balcony. Neither of the grapefruit struck the singing maestro, but one did strike the drummer's cymbals, and the other splattered over the stage props.

The audience gasped. Murmurs were audible throughout the house, but Rudy kept right on crooning. He took no notice of the interruption until he had finished the song. Then, stepping to the front of the stage, he addressed the audience in a mild but decided tone. He took the hecklers to task for their discourtesy and added that there might be some in the audience who enjoyed hearing him. He said many had paid admission for that purpose and that those who disliked his singing were not compelled to stay.

Three young men, whose names were withheld, were taken into custody by ushers and turned over to the police.

The show went on, and the young men went to Police Station 4, where a desk sergeant "read the riot act" to them. Vallee and the theater management declined to press charges, and they were released.

JUDGE MACFARLANE ASSAILED BEFORE NYE COMMITTEE

PINCHOT AIDE ATTACKS JURIST

"Official Unwillingness" to Act on Fraud Evidence Charged at Davis Quiz

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS
Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—For his actions in the investigation of fraud in the last Pennsylvania primary, Judge James E. Macfarlane, of Pittsburgh, today was criticized before the Nye Campaign Funds Investigation Committee by Attorney Ralph H. Frank, Pittsburgh lawyer, Pittsburgh.

Attorney Frank charged that Judge Macfarlane exhibited official unwillingness to take action when facts were brought before him evidence of fraud and corruption in the last primary election in Pittsburgh.

JUDGE DEFENDED

Attorney Frank, in the course of questioning Senator Davis, whose Senate seat is now being contested by Judge Macfarlane, defended the latter.

"Do you impute to Judge Macfarlane any unlawful intent in these matters?" Frank replied.

"Only to the extent that such is implied in his unwillingness to prosecute election violations."

Frank explained that out of a series of complaints against election conditions in Pittsburgh Judge Macfarlane had taken action on only one.

CHARGES FRAUD

Frank told the committee that the municipal courts' work in Allegheny County revealed gross evidence of fraud, and he offered his opinion that District Attorney Andrew T. Park, of Allegheny, might have chosen a better series of cases to prosecute than those elected. He agreed, on cross-examination, that the facts were not traceable to Senator Davis.

Before Frank testified the committee made an effort to determine how much of the Brown-Davis expenditures in Allegheny County and Western Pennsylvania had been spent for Senator Davis.

Recalled to the stand to complete testimony which he started yesterday, Hazen L. Peirce, of Pittsburgh, told the committee that not more than $5,500 of the total of $80,000 expended for the Brown-Davis ticket in Western Pennsylvania might be charged to Senator Davis.

QUIZ ON RECOUNT

H. W. Bennett, of Pittsburgh, was questioned on the recount of ballots in Allegheny County. He said the recount had shown no material change over the initial official returns.

Senator Davis, who did not attend the hearings Thursday, was on hand early today.

'PHANTOM' BALLOTS

Chairman Nye manifested keen interest in the famed "phantom" ballots found in Allegheny County boxes. He asked Bennett to prepare a report on the committee showing how many ballots were marked with indistinct crosses described as an impression left on a pencil in marking a ballot on the top of a stack of such voting slips.

Both Bennett and Frank testified that when one "phantom" ballot was found in a box it was usually regarded as sure evidence that a number of others similarly marked were there also. As a rule organization candidates were found to be the chief beneficiaries of these votes, the witnesses admitted.

ANTI-DRYS PUSH FIGHT FOR DATA

WILL BROADEN PLAN

Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, anti-dry leader, who introduced the inquiry resolution, said he would amend it to include a demand for the commissioners' secret reports, correspondence and records. He declared the country was entitled to know the facts on which seven of the eleven commissioners, individually, declared in favor of repealing or revising the Eighteenth Amendment.

The anti-drys charged the administration with trying to block an inquiry into the commission's activities. Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, said:

"We ought to call all members of the commission before a Senate committee. If this report had been submitted to Congress as originally drawn by a majority of seven members, there would be no difficulty in reconciling the commission's conclusions with the individual opinions. But the form finally submitted contains discrepancies that can never be reconciled."

"The administration has revealed it intends to block an inquiry into how these changes occurred. I at least assume it will block a vote, since such a course was indicated by our floor leader."

WATSON BLOCK ACTION

Blaine referred to an objection by Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, who blocked action on the resolution yesterday.

Wet criticism of the report was even chased by Senator Simeon D. Fess, noted dry leader and Republican national chairman. Fess said he was "quite pleased" with the commission's conclusions endorsing the Eighteenth Amendment, but was tremendously disappointed with the individual opinions. He admitted being unable to reconcile the two verdicts.

The Senate's approval of the commission's recommendation for increased dry army was accomplished after a sharp attack on prohibition by Tydings, who charged it was ridiculous to try to enforce prohibition on a nation of 120,000,000 people with a force of 500 dry agents. He mentioned failure of enforcement in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Chicago.

cause heart. Complications set in, however, and the end came at 4 a. m. this morning.

She died peacefully in her sleep, due to the sudden collapse of the heart. Her husband and violin accompanist, Victor D'Andir, was at the bedside. The couple were married in 1924.

The ballerina will be buried in London, where she maintained her home, Ivy House, for 15 years. Her garden is one of the most beautiful in the city, with a large pond and many Swans, flamingoes and flocks of pigeons were her favorite pets.

For more than 20 years Mme. Pavlowa captivated her audiences with the exquisite technique of a pupil of Sacred Heart School, her dancing retaining her popularity despite the post-war jazz age. She scored ovation after ovation, and her pupils carried on the dance to all corners, section in a letter sent to Public of Europe, North and South Safety Director James M. Clark America. yesterday.

BANKS BLAMED IN INFLATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Adolph C. Miller, of the Federal Reserve Board, testified at the Senate banking inquiry today that the 1927 open market operations of the reserve system caused the credit inflation that brought about the speculative boom of 1928-29.

By buying government securities in 1927 in pursuance of an affirmative policy of its own, Miller said, the system gave member banks excess funds which can only be used for investment, and gave both banks and corporations funds to invest in the call market.

These open market operations, Miller said, constituted one of the greatest and most costly errors ever made by the Federal Reserve or any other banking system. He predicted a crash again in seven or certainly in 10 years if some control were not exercised over the open market operations by the reserve banks.

Clark yesterday.

JOB FOR BONNER STIRS POWER TRUST FOES

Administration Accused of Favoring Interests by Caring for 'Fired' Aide

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The charge was made and denied in the Senate today that the re-employment of Frank E. Bonner, former executive secretary of the Power Commission, indicated the administration was "friendly to the power interests."

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, renewed his demand for the Senate to recommit to the Interstate Commerce Committee the nominations of the three power commissioners which President Hoover refused to return but which are now on the Senate calendar.

"FRIEND OF INTERESTS"

Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, said the only conclusion which could be drawn from Bonner's present employment in the Interior Department was that the administration supported his views which he contended were friendly to the power interests.

Chairman Couzens, of the Interstate Commerce Committee, said there was no reason for drawing such a conclusion.

Bonner was discharged from the commission at the same time as Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Accountant William V. King. King was reemployed with the commission, but Russell, who also asked reinstatement, was not. Referring to valuation claims of the power companies, Wheeler said:

"Russell and King were bringing these facts to the surface, and Bonner was treating them lightly, upbraiding King and Russell for paying any attention to them and belittling the whole procedure."

TO STUDY ACCOUNTS

Altering the procedure followed by its predecessor, the new Power Commission intends to pass upon reports of its field accountants before they are submitted to companies seeking hydro-electric licenses.

Chairman Smith made the policy known today, saying he saw no reason why the commission should not exercise power to accept or reject the recommendations of its accountants without waiting the representations of licensees.

The reports are made on the investment claims of the companies required under the water power law which provides for recapture of the plants by the government at a fair price at the expiration of the license, which usually runs 50 years.

consideration of the applicant for any state job under the jurisdiction of the governor. After February 15, the pledge will be exacted from all applicants.

DEMANDED ANSWER

In his previous administration Gov. Pinchot required a "yes" or "no" answer from all appointees including his cabinet members on the following question:

"Will you, on word of honor, throughout your term of office, support and defend and personally obey the Constitution of the United States, including the Eighteenth Amendment and the national and state laws enacted to carry that amendment into effect?"

Asked whether his pledge would apply to cabinet members and other appointees already named, Gov. Pinchot said:

"Never mind that. This applies to the future."

John M. Phillips, head of the State Game Commission for many years, resigned at the beginning of Pinchot's last administration rather than sign a dry pledge in addition to taking his oath of office.

Five minutes after the order was received by the company, a man had been sent to the mansion to make the changes.

my stars hold a happier destiny than prison for me."

Three times in four hours the jury returned to Judge W. C. Doran's courtroom last night before its seven men and five women members were locked up for the night.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN

The last time they filed in to get the court's definition of the words "permanent" and "intent," Judge Doran had used these in his instructions telling the jurors it was their duty to determine if it was Miss De Voe's intent to deprive the motion picture "It" girl permanently of her property.

They also had read to them certain portions of the testimony and when the court had finished they were locked up for the night.

Earlier in the evening Judge Doran had polled the jury after it had reported inability to agree on a verdict and sent it back to try again.

One of the woman jurors, Mrs. Ira B. Pratt, appeared on the verge of a breakdown from the arguments which went on in the jury room.

Miss Bow is still bed-ridden at her home, due to a cold it was reported. The red-headed screen star, who brought the charges against her one-time secretary has not appeared in court since a week ago Wednesday.

White House Sidetracks Relief Bill, Appeals for Aid Near Million Mark

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Relief calls to the Red Cross for food and clothing during the past few days have been so great that Chairman John Barton Payne today said close to a million people would need aid by February 1. He added:

"Our reports today show we are caring for 587,034. Our field workers in the one state of Arkansas alone estimate 550,000 persons will be on the Red Cross rolls in that state by February 1. This is more than one-quarter of the entire population of the state.

"Relief has been extended to a number of counties in West Virginia, Virginia, Alabama and Ohio by the national organization in the past few days, as the local resources of the community and the chapters were exhausted."

In the Mississippi Valley flood in 1927, Payne pointed out, 600,000 persons were cared for by the Red Cross.

Contributions to the Red Cross $10,000,000 relief fund were boosted to $1,264,000 today, following the radio appeal last night by President Hoover, former President Coolidge, Alfred E. Smith and others.

Meanwhile, the Senate's $25,000,000 appropriation for Red Cross relief went to a House committee for hearings today, while Democratic leaders asked if the move involved an "deliberate delay."

The Senate appropriation, in the form of an amendment to the Interior Department bill, was referred to the Appropriations Committee by Speaker Longworth.

Representative Cramton (Rep.), Michigan, said hearings would be expedited. Red Cross officials will be heard tomorrow if they are ready to testify.

The Senate proposal is firmly opposed by President Hoover. House administration leaders are seeking to defeat it, but fear they have not enough votes to maintain the President's position.

Couzens, Wife Give $10,000 for Relief

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Senator and Mrs. James Couzens have contributed $10,000 toward the $350,000 Detroit quota for the $10,000,000 Red Cross drought relief fund.

In a letter to Gustavus D. Pope, chairman of the Detroit Red Cross chapter, Senator Couzens said that although he voted for a government appropriation for the purpose and favored that method, he wished to be listed among the voluntary contributors.

Red Cross Donations Here Reach $106,261

Dry on Wickersham Board Sees Change Inevitable

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Kenneth Mackintosh, of Seattle, one of the five members of the Wickersham commission who recommended further trial and strict enforcement of prohibition, asserted today that a change in the dry law was inevitable. He said:

"American fathers and mothers are appalled at seeing their boys and girls return home intoxicated night after night.

"Prohibition put the saloon out of business. We may now look to something that will eradicate bootlegging and its attendant evils.

"It is too easy to make alcohol. Almost any one can afford to set up a small still in his cellar. The new generation cannot tell the old brands from overnight stuff. I suppose they would be suspicious of the taste of the genuine product.

"As was to be expected, passionate partisans, without having had any opportunity to examine thoroughly the long report, were quick to put their prejudiced interpretations on such of it as they were informed of, and voice their opinions and criticisms."

Self-Government Best System, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 23.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Mostly because of development in some foreign countries we find considerable discussion of whether democracy is not proving a failure. Very great things have been expected of that form of government. The oratory that has been expended in its glorification has not all been found to be justified. No informed student of human affairs ever expected that democracy would be a sovereign remedy for all the ills with which mortals are beset. But the principle of self-government, applied in so far as the development of a people will admit of its application, remains as the best solution of social relations.

Calvin Coolidge

In times of national peril, whether military or economic, it has been found necessary to modify the application of the principle in the interest of expedition and solidarity. That has been done in some European countries but it is a temporary expedient. Self-government is the expression of one of the strongest and most logical aspirations of human nature. There is no other system that is consistent with freedom. In the end it will prevail because it is everlastingly right. The character of our people is the best guarantee of its success in the United States.

WOMAN FARO VICTIM IN HYSTERICS

U. S. Revenue Collector Loses Money Loaned by Politician in 'Frameup'

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—Police and federal agents investigating the $50,000 faro game swindle which victimized Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue here, and Edward R. Litsinger, prominent political leader, announced today that a search has been started for Jules (Nicky) Arnstein, reputed New York confidence man.

One of the three authors of the crooked faro game participated in at a Springfield (Ill.) hotel bore a strong resemblance to Arnstein, according to descriptions given detectives by Mrs. Blacklidge.

WOMAN COLLAPSES

Meanwhile, Mrs. Blacklidge was reported prostrated today and under the care of two physicians.

Confined to bed in the home of a friend, the doctors described Mrs. Blacklidge's condition as "almost delirious," and issued strict orders that she was not to be disturbed.

Robert E. Neeley, chief deputy collector of internal revenue, reported that Mrs. Blacklidge had appeared to take courage when informed that Secret Service men were on the trail of Arnstein.

Coincidently, Litsinger, member of the Cook County board of review, declared that he would ask John A. Swanson, state's attorney of Cook County, to intervene in the investigation and question Mrs. Blacklidge, asserting:

"I was a sucker, just as other men have been suckers and have been caught. The loss of money does not mean much to me. I did not act without careful consideration. I knew that publicity of the scandal would result in a loss to me of political prestige much greater than the loss of the $50,000. I felt duty bound, however, to expose this plot."

Before leaving Springfield for Chicago, Mrs. Blacklidge repeated to authorities there that she had borrowed the money from Litsinger, one-time candidate for mayor, to post as guarantee to collect winnings of $207,000 in a faro game in which she had participated with three men Saturday night at Springfield.

VANISH WITH CASH

The three men, together with the $50,000, disappeared from the hotel and have not been seen since.

Mrs. Blacklidge returned here last night to find federal agents carrying out an investigation of her office, which had been ordered by David Burnet, commissioner of internal revenue at Washington.

Nicky Arnstein

Arthur P. Madden, chief of the intelligence bureau here, is in charge of the inquiry.

After a preliminary check of accounts it was unofficially reported that all was in order. The regular examination of Internal Revenue Department accounts was completed last Sunday and showed everything in good order, according to Madden.

LORD IRWIN DECIDES ON FREEDOM

Action Appears to Be Result Of Round Table Action at London; Jailed Since May

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Viceroy Lord Irwin, it was understood here today, already has made a decision to release Mahatma Gandhi, imprisoned Nationalist leader. Only the details of his removal from Yeroda prison, Poona, so as to avoid a public demonstration, remain to be arranged.

Gandhi was arrested last May 4, more than a month after he had led a group of All-India National Congress volunteers from Allahabad down to the sea at Dandhi, where they manufactured salt in defiance of British law.

He had hoped for arrest earlier, believing his incarceration would align divergent elements behind him in the passive war for independence, but for many weeks the British government arrested his aides and left him alone.

Police finally awakened him in the middle of the night at a camp near the seashore and escorted him to especially prepared quarters in the Yeroda prison, Poona.

Many of his followers had hoped that one of the results of the round table conference just completed at London would be release of Gandhi and other political prisoners.

SPEED, HONESTY VOTE BILL AIM

A bill designed to speed tabulating of election returns and providing for court auditors to be on duty at polling places to guard against fraud, will be presented to the Legislature, State Senator Frank J. Harris announced today.

The measure will be sponsored by the Pennsylvania Election Law Conference, of which Senator Harris is a member.

Under its provisions the judges of Common Pleas Court will serve as the returning board for both primary and general elections. The judges now supervise only the tabulation of general election returns. The County Commissioners form the return board at primary elections.

Count of returns would be begun at the close of the polls by a board named prior to the election, instead of waiting for several days to organize the board, heretofore the practive.

PACT MAY GET BERGDOLL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—State Department officials said today the new extradition treaty with Germany was formulated without reference to the possibility of bringing Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft evader and escaped military prisoner, back to America.

The treaty was ratified by the Senate yesterday.

The department refused to give any opinion whether Bergdoll could be extradited under the pact and officials said the question was not before the department.

Bergdoll, member of a wealthy Philadelphia family of German extraction, was convicted of dodging the draft. He escaped from prison and made his way to Germany, where he has defied all efforts to return him to the United States.

POLICE KILL PAL OF JAWORSKI

DETROIT, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Guns of two policemen yesterday ended the career of Frank (Whitey) Kraft, member of the Jaworski "Flathead" gang which perpetrated sensational robberies in Detroit and the Pittsburgh district.

Gunman Kraft

His death balanced police books on a $23,000 robbery at Beadling, Pa., December 23, 1923, when a payroll car was dynamited and the paymaster killed, and the holdup of the Detroit News, June 6, 1928, when $14,000 was taken and a policeman slain. Paul Jaworski, gang chieftain, was electrocuted in Pennsylvania January 21, 1929, for the Beadling robbery.

Yesterday afternoon, Patrolman Edward L. Nowacki was taking Patrolman Glenn Chilpeck to work. They stopped at a railroad crossing in Hamtramck and Nowacki recognized in his rear vision mirror the reflection of Kraft in a car behind. As Kraft passed, he recognized the patrolmen and opened fire.

The policemen fired answering shots and when they drew alongside, Kraft was dead behind the wheel. His companion, John Micuda, was not wounded. He is held for investigation.

ENGLISH BREACH WIDENS WITH TOWNSENDS

Councilman Denies Tax Dispute on Gardens Due To Split Over Business

Councilman W. Y. English's political break with the Townsend faction of the Twentieth Ward was widened today as the fuss and furor over the city taxes owed by Duquesne Garden continued.

Attorney James J. Callahan, counsel for the Townsends, charged that Fitzsimmons had asked Counsel to collect the back taxes of $46,000 as a condition of Edward Townsend's withdrawal as the city's Bureau of Property, which is president of the North Side Packing Company. Callahan said that on Wednesday the directors of the packing company, of which English was secretary and general manager, had asked the councilman to accept a cut in his $5,400 salary of $3,600. English resigned.

ENGLISH REPLIES

Today English, who has been described as a political protege of the Townsends, replied:

"I have never been a protege of the Townsends. Exactly opposite is the true situation. The Townsends fastened themselves on me and it has been a heavy burden. I do not know the assessed value of the Duquesne Garden property or who owns it, or what price they are trying to get from the county for a Town Hall site.

"I will not falter in this instance regarding the taxes against the Duquesne Garden property. Surely it is the duty of every city official to protect the city's interests.

REGRETS CONTROVERSY

"I am very sorry that Mr. Callahan has tried to make a controversy out of my personal business. The directors of the parking company did not discharge me, nor did they reduce expenses, and no charges of any nature whatsoever were made against me. Future developments will tell the story."

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, whose Pittsburgh hockey club rents the Garden part-time, said he had been trying to collect the taxes and was confident they would be paid shortly.

MIX'S CONTRACT SUIT AT END

ERIE, Jan. 23.—(AP.)—Testimony ended late yesterday in the $325,000 breach of contract suit brought against Tom Mix, circus cowboy, by Zack T. Miller of the 101 Ranch Shows.

The defense rested after successfully objecting to a cross examination question directed at Mix seeking to ascertain if he admitted in an interview with an Erie newspaper reporter that he verbally agreed in 1929 to join "101," but changed his mind and signed up with Sells-Floto, a Ringling interest.

The cross examination proved an ordeal to the actor. Once he lost his temper and shot back at plaintiff's counsel:

"What's the big idea, trying to make a liar out of me?"

Miller's attorneys also were overruled when they sought to place in evidence the alleged newspaper interview which they said was obtained by a court house reporter for a local newspaper.

Arguments of attorneys will begin today.

ROOT CONCEDES 'VAGUE' COURT SAFEGUARDS

Reed Urges Positive Clause to End Doubt as to U. S. Stand With League

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—A concession to the Root-Hurst formula specifically protecting the United States against the menace of advisory opinions by the League of Nations Court was being advocated today by Senator David A. Reed, Rep., of Pennsylvania.

Reed, opposing this course, was supported by the resignation Wednesday of Elihu Root, co-author of the formula which bears the name of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, who thought the United States was amply protected against the revised court protocol.

Under cross-examination by Reed and other committee members, Root, it developed, was forced to admit that this was "fairly correct," although done as the protocol is now worded.

DISSATISFACTION GROWS

Reed's attitude, and that of other committee members, indicated Root's appearance before the Foreign Relations Committee had accentuated the growing dissatisfaction with the Root-Hurst formula.

Explaining his proposal, which he made yesterday, Reed said:

"Everybody agrees that advisory opinions should not be rendered without the consent of interested parties. Mr. Root claims we still have the right of veto under the fifth Senate reservation. Secretary of State Stimson thinks we have it under article 68.

"Some senators agree with one, some with the other, and a third group, of whom I am one, doubt whether the right is preserved in either way.

"All that I suggest doing is making clear beyond doubt that which we all agree upon as desirable."

IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT

Senator Reed said he thinks such a reservation as he proposes should be offered by some member of the Senate when the question of ratifying or rejecting the treaty comes before that body. He was unprepared to say that he himself would do so.

Reed's position was of prime importance, because he voted for ratification with the Senate reservations in 1926. The Root-Hurst formula is now offered as a substitute for reservation five, which specifically protected this country against advisory opinions.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth, its energy, its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanished and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets will help save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

Muscular-Rheumatic Aches and Pains

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole

SAFETY COUNCIL ASKS CLOSING OF OLD MINES

Recent Tragedy Recalled In Appeal to Officials To Have Openings Sealed

Closing of all openings in abandoned mines as a means of preventing tragedies similar to the one in which five South Side boys recently lost their lives, will be sought by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, officials announced today. State county and city officials will be asked to co-operate.

A committee headed by Francis Feehan a member of the board of directors of the Council and a member of the United States Bureau of Mines, was appointed by Frank L. Duncan, president, to carry out the work. City Council, the County Commissioners and the state attorney general have been sent letters which show the danger of the abandoned openings and asking for conferences to discuss proposed legislation.

Feehan said a bill designed to eliminate undesirable conditions under the surface in mines was submitted to the last session of the Pennsylvania legislature but was vetoed because of lack of appropriation. He said the safety council will not be immediately concerned with conditions underground but will make every attempt to close openings.

The council has had the problem of burning mines in the Pittsburgh district under survey for several years. George E. Clarkson, manager, said the greatest menace in unguarded mines is the curious attraction of children to an opening in the ground.

Building Activities Gain Over November

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Building operations launched during December in cities of more than 25,000 population had a valuation 81 per cent greater than like operations for November. Bologna From Applesauce

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

a second lieutenant. Charge waiting ammunition. Not guilty.

Tenth: Refusing to shine shoes in times of national stress and peril. Not guilty.

On all five charges, guilty. Sentence, 30 days in the shade.

We could never understand why we could be so innocent of the charges one by one and guilty of them all in a lump.

And we will never understand how the Wickersham commission can applesauce through the concrete-mixer and get bologny.

Prof. Einstein is going to school again at California Tech.

He comes highly recommended. At good old Heidelberg he was on the stein team.

He's only a plebe at California Tech and will not be allowed to vell at microbes through a megaphone.

Until he is tapped for the Skull and Keys he will not be permitted to write funny sayings in white paint on the palpitating sides of a touring car.

Freshmen at California Tech must also wear their beards short.

And Albert doesn't understand Gunstar.

Which is a good thing. You always graduate much brighter when you don't understand the professor.

His first lesson was looking at a mess of stars that are three billion miles away. They have a telescope that brings the stars closer together than polka dots on a sock.

Then he will be encouraged to try for the science and research eleven. You grab an encyclopedia and rush it down the field between millions of pulsating atoms.

You can't see an atom. But it's even. It can't see you either.

Then he refreshes himself with a little geology in vinegar, a dash of Peruvian mathematics and a warm bath of compound anachronisms.

Albert merely studied in Europe for a brief 50 years. He is the big shooting cracker in Germany. But at California Tech he is only a punk.

Why you cannot even matriculate in California Tech unless you drive up in a wheel chair.

That's how advanced they are out there. When a student gets up and talks about the rotation of the galaxies and the perpetuation of the academic rippetikes that ain't anything. It's just like saying good morning in the home for the feeble-minded.

They think so hard in California Tech that their ears quiver, they've got to nail their hats on and their eyebrows fall off.

That's hot thinking. And that's the way Einstein likes it. He's got it.

SCAN MAYVIEW GUARD BIDS

Bids for window guards on new buildings at the Pittsburgh City Home and Hospital at Mayview, and bread for the various city police stations were opened yesterday by Director Bertram L. Succop, of the Department of Supplies.

The contract for furnishing the guards and bars will be in the neighborhood of $2,000, Succop said. When the new buildings were erected, he pointed out, installation of the bars was delayed.

Symptoms of a Cold

They are well defined. An achy sensation, sneezing; cold, chilly feeling, headache. A serious uncomfortable condition which is soon relieved by the tonic and laxative effect of

Stops pain Acts as tonic to the system

That Disfiguring Veil o. Black Heads and Pimples Quickly Removed!

What a Difference 3 Days Will Make!

SKIN Blemishes, Dull Sallow Pasty Complexions, and Blotches usually yield to proper treatment.

The cause must be removed. Most blemishes come all too frequently from a toxic blood supply poisoned by intestinal stasis. Continued, the condition leads to auto-intoxication and many serious illnesses. These signs are Nature's signals of a septic system, that lowers body-resistance and makes infection easy.

Few realize when they're septic. It comes on so gradually. There may be daily movements—partial elimination. No one will tell the Septic of his fetal breath and body odor. Not your mirror will tell. Nature signals her need of the Calcium wafer!

Try This Ten-Cent Test

A ten-cent package of Stuart's Calcium Wafers—the convenient pocket size—should work wonders for any septic. Gentle in their laxative action, they are thorough internal cleansers—they help to purify the system and the blood-stream of poisonous wastes.

Quickened vigor—mental and physical—is often the immediate result. The Skin clears. Blemishes vanish. Eyes become brighter and more sparkling. Radiant health glows from a live and colorful complexion. Let one dime open this easy way to skin-beauty for you.

STAGE STAR, RADIO CELEBRITY VIE FOR AUDIENCE

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL A. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Sponsors of the 8 o'clock feature on KDKA continue to import high-powered talent in an effort to win the loyal audience of Jessica Dragonette at the same time on WCAE. Tonight their bet is Frances Williams of the "New Yorkers." She is to sing "You're Driving Me Crazy" and two tunes from the show in which she is now featured.

But the moon, not Charleston dancing, seems to be the chief distance the crooners desire in singing some of her most collected numbers. Jessica Dragonette "Mother" from Mr. Maryland and "Love and Dance" from Tales of Hoffman, to name but two. John Searle.

Down in Washington, D. C., Richard Dix, Estelle Taylor and Floyd Gibbons are the center of attraction at the premiere of Dix's new vehicle "Cimarron." WCAE has them at 10:30.

Boston—famous for being the birthplace of Fred Waring and few other things—supplies a half hour of music, culture, breaks over the WJAS chains at 10 o'clock with a symphony of 60 pieces.

OLD MAN NOAH

Pat Hailey, Pittsburgh boy at WTAM, tells this one:

An old-timer at an inquest just finished rehearsing. The Deluge in Sam'l Sacro and picked up a static telephone, the operator called the engineer of [illegible]

How long was "The Deluge" the director asked.

"Forty days and 40 nights" came back the reply.

Luke Barrett and Bebe Falvo have been caught in the radio scene. Luke is to sing every Wednesday night over WJAS starting February 4. Bebe starts on WJAS next Tuesday night at [illegible]

QUESTION A DAY

Why doesn't some Pittsburgh station broadcast hockey games from Duquesne Gardens?—Willie [illegible] Mahal.

Answer—First, hockey officials opposed to radio. Second, time isn't available because of commercial accounts. For a novelty, we would like to hear a hockey or basketball game described this season by the rapid-fire sports reporter, Bill Farren.

Especially Dull, Barnsome Sherman is at play Rudolph "The Three Bakers" to will have given up their contract to broadcast a special series for WMAQ.

Those who follow the Sun-Telegraph's accurate radio schedule had the pleasure of knowing in advance that Frieda Hempel would sing "Blue Danube" last night. It was as Jenny Lind-like as that silver voice of Jessica Dragonette.

There is a clause in Maurice Chevalier's contract which provides that his program is to be picked up from any city in which he happens to be. His series starts on WEAF-WCAE Sunday night, February 8, at 8:30 o'clock.

If you have time to "leave town" tonight pick up the Beaux Arts ball on WABC at midnight or the host of stage celebrities on WEAF at 11:30. WJAS brings us many movie stars tomorrow afternoon at 2.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—It is time the grand old men of sport were given their microphonic tribute. Too long have the air channels been dominated by the grand young men of sport the Ruths, the Booths, the Caridoes, and Dempseys.

What of Jeffries and Tommy Ryan and Hans Wagner and Frank Kramer and Eddie Bald—whatever became of him?—and Alonzo Stagg and Tod Sloan? They should have some good stories for the armchairs.

No statistics are yet available as to the number of listeners who now tune into the stock market reports.

Not even a third-rate orchestra can destroy the sweeping vigor of the "Ride of the Valkyries," nor a third rate dance band the lifting charm of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," nor a third-rate brass band the thrilling stimulation of "Stars and Stripes Forever."

One of the best, though one of the least exploited symphonic organizations on the air is the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra. It has, it is said, the check book of George Eastmara at its disposal.

Wonder why Henry Ford has not yet endowed for radio an old-fashioned orchestra, a band, let us say, of 50, who not only knew their harmonicas, jews-harps and fiddles but their old countryside jigs.

Such a band would gain the ears of the crossroads as nothing has gained them since the last Battle of the White House.

Prepared speeches in so-called national forum hours will never suffice for the heat and clamor of genuine debates on the floor.

The cigaret war on the loudspeakers continues unabated.

Strange the magnificoes of the air do not present more programs that attempt to trace jokes and jazz to their native lair.

Whenever I am asked my opinion of Charles G. Dawes' composition, "Melody," I am compelled in truth to answer I have never heard it. But I have heard his voice on one or two occasions and it is a voice ever dramatically promising of first-class bean-spilling.

The art of bean-spilling, practiced so industriously in present-day journalism, is given scant hospitality in the broadcast studios.

Three years ago artists of the concert and operatic stage surrounded their microphonic appearances with secrecy. Now they are anxious that the radio public know everything about them. Boy, please open the mail!

Some of the maddest comedy on the air is that offered by Eddie and Ralph under the name of "Sisters of the Skillet." Broadcasters are paying more and more attention to a jeerful little earful.

There is always room on the loudspeakers for a talk on "The Younger Generation."

Columbia University still advertises a course in publicity. If Columbia should consult Yale it will learn that the farthest-flung publicity is a crooning saxophonist who can sing "I Love You" as if he meant it.

When the boys who name the Pullman cars ever need jobs they should find them at the broadcast studios. Some of the fanciest of all names are those of radio programs—"Troubadour of the Moon," "El Tango Romantico," "Around the Samovar," "The Gypsy Trail," "Arabesque," "The Silver Flute," "Troika Bells."

Former spies in the secret service show no hurry, strangely, to step up to the microphones for a period of ear-tingling.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE; LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Jack Gilbert May Co-Star With Greta Garbo in New Talkie

BY HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.

Though Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is short on Jack Gilbert's immediate future, preparations are going on at the studio to transform "Cheri-Bibi" into a suitable vehicle for the star.

This story by Gaston Leroux originally was planned for Lon Chaney. It tells of a condemned prisoner who escapes on the way to Devil's Island and returns to get revenge. The prisoner has a double identity role, as the prisoner has features remade by plastic surgery.

John Robertson will direct "Cheri-Bibi."

There is some talk of Gilbert doing another story before "Cheri-Bibi." According to present plans, however, Gilbert may be co-starring with Greta Garbo in a talker version of "The Rise and Fall of Susan Lenox." Production officials are tight-lipped about this project, definitely is under consideration.

Greta Garbo.

AMBITIOUS INTERPRETER

Out at Hal Roach's they engaged a French interpreter to assist Charley Chase and his director, James Horn, in making a foreign version. On his first day the interpreter simply took charge, leaving Horn wondering what it was all about. The second day was a repetition until noon, when the interpreter disappeared.

About 2:30 p. m. he returned to the set and Horn demanded to know where he had been.

The interpreter calmly replied that he had been on a scouting trip to M. G. M. lots and that a substitute for Chase as his French was very bad.

LATEST GOSSIP

Virginia Valli has gone to Portland, where she is playing a two weeks' engagement in "The Infinite Shoeblack." She has the Helen Menken role. Colleen Moore has two stories ready for use her in a picture if she can find the right story. So can dozens of others between studios.

AYRES ROW SETTLED

On Sunday last a row which existed between Universal and Lewis Ayres suddenly ended.

Aroused by the fact that Warner's paid Universal $5,000 a week to use him in "The Doorway to Hell," Ayres refused to go on with the filming of "The Iron Man," a boxing story and his current assignment.

Thanks to someone's diplomacy, and probably to a more satisfactory salary arrangement, the young actor now is going on with the picture. Until today his salary is reported to have been less than $500 a week.

Lewis Ayres.

Singing Role

Grace Moore is the singing heroine of "New Moon," film version of the stage success, opening today in the Penn.

and young players, who have come into sudden prominence and have been galled by the disparity between their salaries and the amount that the studio was able to get for them on the open market.

Incidentally Jean Harlow is to have the feminine lead opposite Ayres in "The Iron Man."

Chain Store Head Held Up; $21 Taken

An armed Negro held up John Nye, manager of the P. H. Butler store, Forbes and Magee streets, today, escaping with $21 from the cash register. Nye was alone in the store.

Failure

Now you survey me coolly, head to foot,
Weigh me implacably, and shake your head;
Love is a flower twisted from the root,
Glamour, a foolish word, and strangely dead.

Yet, I can swear there is no change in me—
I am the selfsame lad who long ago
Brought to your night a shade of ecstasy,
Knowing in time that I would have to go.

If I could change, then doubtless I could stay,
If I knew subtle tricks to hold you by;
But I am dull and I can only say
What I have said before—When you are nigh:

All nights are sweet—all days sky-blue and clear,
Strange, this is not enough for you, my dear!
—Kid Kazanova.

Song Title

Mr. Kramer of the vaudeville team of Kramer and Boyle announces his new ditty entitled "Why Do They Make the Holes in Swiss Cheese When it's the Limburger That Needs the Ventilation?"

Silly

Take it from one of the Columbia jesters, a drunk leaned over the railing of the Queensboro Bridge and gazed at the reflection of the moon on the water. A copy ankled up.

"Shay, offisher," said the stew, "ish that the moon down there?"

"Yes, it is," said the cop.

"Then," hiccuped the drunk, "how'd I get up here?"

Limerick

One of the ageless and better limericks now entices laughs in a Fifty-fifth street giggle-goo place. It is on the wall over the bar and it goes:

There was an old fellow named Sydney,
Who drank till he ruined a kidney,
It shriveled and shrank
As he sat there and drank,
But he had a good time of it, didney?

Similes

"Fickle as love in the 'teens"—Kessinger's Review. "He looks like an accident about to happen."—Anne Mayne. "As sick as a suspected judge."—Dana L. Cotie.

News Item

At Dinty Moore's the other supper time we dined with Al Jolson. A mutual pal was saying that many lads who still have cots are running food kitchens for the unemployed and that they aren't announcing the fact.

"That Capone guy, for instance," said the chap, "has been happen."—Anne Mayne. "As sick as a suspected judge."—Dana L. Cotie.

LAY-BROTHER'S RITES MONDAY

BEATTY, Pa., Jan. 23.—Funeral services will be held Monday for the Late Lay Brother Wolfgang Traxler, of the Order of St. Benedict, St. Vincent's Archabbey who died here yesterday. A famous wood carver, he designed, planned and directed the construction of much of the beautiful work at St. Vincent's Church, St. Bede College, Peru, Ill., and the Belmont Abbey, North Carolina. He was very active, considered by priests preaching the dedication of churches and other services.

Brother Wolfgang was dean of the brothers of the college for 36 years. Born in 1854, he came here from Bohemia as a small boy. He became a benedictine in 1874, 57 years ago.

His death is the third among older priests here in the last three weeks. The Rev. Isador Fousek, born in the same year as Brother Wolfgang, and a benedictine for a similar length of time also died recently at the age of 77. Rev. John Miller, aged 71, died three weeks ago.

NO JAIL FAVORS FOR M'LAUGHLIN

GREENSBURG, Jan. 23.—Capt. Thomas J. McLaughlin, former commander of Troop A of the state police, is not to be shown any favors during his three-month stay in Westmoreland County jail, it was intimated today.

Capt. McLaughlin spent the first night locked in his cell like the many other prisoners in the jail. He was brought to the institution from Pittsburgh yesterday after pleading guilty in Federal Court to charges of failure to file an income tax report and attempting to evade payment of income tax on $133,689.

Stolen Auto Found In 10-Minute Hunt

Ten minutes after B. Schwartz of the Fairfax Apartment Hotel had reported to police that his automobile had been stolen from Tenth street and Liberty avenue, the machine was recovered in Diamond street. Patrolman John Roach, who walks the Diamond street beat, turned from his police telephone box, the license number of the stolen car fresh in his memory, and discovered the machine parked a few feet away.

Victim of Monoxide Revived in Hospital

Unconscious from the effects of monoxide fumes, William Taylor, 55, of 2010 Fifth avenue, was removed from his room to Mercy Hospital early today. After physicians revived Taylor they discovered he was ill from meningitis, and sent him to the municipal hospital.

WALTER WINCHELL
On Broadway

running a soup kitchen in Chicago for seven months, but the papers only spoke about it recently."

"Nay," interrupted another, "if you want to write something nice for a change, why not write about me? I'm running a breadline in New York every day!"

We replied that we didn't think the jobless could afford to tip breadline leaders any thanks, that they should consider it so much guy. And then, when we left the place, we wondered why Mr. Jolson, who has been running a breadline in the Ghetto for months, didn't brag about it.

His probable wishes we hadn't mentioned it now, but we thought that he would rather have us mention his breadline, instead of telling about his numerous other charities, such as the consumptive camp, the finances, etc.

Philosophy

In the D. Fidler manner:

"There is nothing as changeable as the human mind—unless it is a chorus girl's hair."

The Retort Proper

They were chinning about theater-talkers. Someone recalled the time Otis Skinner appeared in the South before an audience of women who chattered throughout his performance.

After the show Mr. Skinner met them backstage.

"We enjoyed the play very much," one of them cooed, "but, do you know, sir, there were times when we could hardly hear you!"

"Now, isn't that strange?" answered the star acidly, "I could hear you."

Poem

I rhyme these few words to the one
Who greets me when the day is done
With sugared words between each kiss,
Who makes me write such things as this!

Salute

There probably is nothing so sweet as a "good break" on The Street of Broken Promises. Miss Lyda Roberti, the new "find" of the "You Said It" show, will tell you so, at any rate. Her first Broadway production won her grand notices and the acclaim of the audiences.

Lyda is a child of about 19. She is from Poland and her dialect is contagious, but so is her talent. About six months ago at a party, Lyda was coaxed to get up and clown. Her dialect wowed them, but nobody took her song specialties to heart. In Mr. Lou Holtz's new musical show she races off with the blue ribbons.

The "Fifty Million Frenchmen" show refused to let her enlist in its chorus!

Things That Burn Me Up and Knock Me Cold

When you score on Broadway there usually is a group of chiselers and other "hornersin" who try to cash in on your grass. Take the case of Jim MacCloy, a newcomer to the Stem who now is in the movies. According to a theatrical week-ly, a local has started action against Miss MacCloy for commissions because he claims he arranged her Paramount contract which brought her a leg in "Reaching for the Moon."

The agent is about the only one to claim credit for her Paramount connection and express. Various press items have credited nearly everyone but the right person, the one who sits back and titters at their gall.

Depot Agent Admits $10,000 Holdup Fake

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(INS.)—What was accepted as a successful $10,000 railroad station holdup was revealed today as a hoax perpetrated by Hobart E. Smith, ticket agent, according to his admissions to police.

Smith last Monday reported that he had been held up in his office in the Union Station and robbed of more than $10,000. Questioned insistently on minor details of the holdup, Smith finally admitted, according to police, that the robbery story was a hoax. He led police to his home where detectives found $10,685.

Fire in Chimney Routs Magistrate

A chimney fire last midnight disturbed the slumbers of the family of Magistrate Charles Papalia, 133 Auburn street. Engine Company No. 8 was summoned. There was no damage.

REMNANT DAY

The Greatest Thing of its Kind in America*

Remnant Day has grown to such tremendous proportions that two days are none too many to serve the large crowds—and so the selling continues through tomorrow.

Into this second, and final, Remnant Day goes the same forceful spirit that has made Boggs & Buhl Remnant Day an institution in every household in the tri-state area.

"RED INK PRICES" are the magic words that mean the greatest Remnant Day of them all in the minds of these thousands and thousands of people. Red Ink Prices rule the entire store—they greet you everywhere you turn—a great compelling army that tell, far better than words, a convincing story of sensational savings.

There will be thousands of dollars worth of merchandise here for Remnant Day shoppers tomorrow. Remnants that were slow selling today will be reticketed with new lower red ink prices tomorrow. There will be:

* Merchants from other cities have travelled to Pittsburgh to witness a Boggs & Buhl Remnant Day. On the occasion of the visit of one of them, the late R. H. Boggs conducted the gentleman through the store. This merchant was so impressed with the great throngs of enthusiastic shoppers that he turned to Mr. Boggs and said, "I have seen a great many store-wide sales in many cities, and I want to say to you, Mr. Boggs, that I consider this Remnant Day of yours the greatest thing of its kind in America." Mr. Boggs promptly adopted this sentence as the slogan for Remnant Day.

Offered for the First Time Tomorrow at Sensational Remnant Day Prices

25,000 Yards New Silks

Impossible to handle the selling of fabrics cut from the piece along with the remnants of piece goods, and so these new silks were purposely held over for tomorrow's sale. These new piece goods are a substantial part of the Remnant Day offerings, and, considering that none of them were on sale today, it means again—marvelous values to those who come tomorrow.

New record low prices are offered in every one of the fifteen features in new silks listed below. All recent purchases at prices that take you back to levels of sixteen years ago. One striking example: Printed chiffons in tomorrow's sale at $1 a yard were a sensation in last year's Remnant Day Sale at $1.35—last year they were all sold out at one o'clock in the afternoon!

Prudence Penny's Recipes

I wonder how many housewives value the debt they owe to the adaptability, capability and cutlets that lies in a small package of macaroni or spaghetti?

Soups, dishes of casserole and even some meat pies are invented of Italian pastes and one of the most delicacies of cold weather has a base of cooked macaroni.

Here are some special recipes which demands either macaroni or spaghetti. Here they are:

CASSEROLE MACARONI—Eight ounces of macaroni, half a pound of small can of tomato paste, pound ground steak, salt, butter, onion and celery.

Cook an 8-ounce package of macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Remove to a hot platter. Brown the half-pound of ground steak in 4 tablespoons of butter, add the seasoning of salt, pepper, onion and 1 stalk of celery chopped fine. Put alternating layers of macaroni and meat in a hot casserole, pour in 2 small cups of tomato puree that has been brought to the boiling point, cover with buttered crumbs and bake a half-hour in a moderate oven.

SPAGHETTI LUNCHEON—Cook a small package of spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. You will want 4 cupfuls in all; add 2 cup of grated cheese, 1 cupful of chopped pimento, a large cupful of tomato sauce, a teaspoonful of salt, ½ teaspoonful of pepper and a beaten egg. Pour into a hot buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. The top may be covered with grated cheese buttered crumbs or the pulp of the tomato.

BELGIAN RABBIT—One tablbit, 1 pound of prunes, currant or gooseberry jelly, 2 box of macaroni. Cook the macaroni in salted water, cut the rabbit in small pieces and cook until tender. Soak the prunes in warm water over night and remove the pits. Combine the rabbit, macaroni and prunes and let them simmer over a slow heat until the prunes are tender. Remove to a hot serving platter. Add a tablespoon of the fruit conserve and a teaspoon of cornstarch to the sauce in pan. Cook until it thickens, pour over rabbit and serve.

CEREAL CELERY SOUP—One quart milk, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup cooked granular whole wheat cereal, 1 cup finely cut celery.

Make a white sauce of milk, flour, salt and butter. Add cooked cereal, simmer until smooth. Cook celery in small amount of water for 5 minutes and add celery and water to other mixtures. This makes 4 large servings.

MACARONI RAGOUT—½ package macaroni, 2 tablespoons chopped ham, 2 tablespoons chopped liver, 4 tablespoons grated cheese, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon meat extract, salt, pepper, parsley.

Break the macaroni in inch pieces and cook in boiling water. Drain and put in a hot dish in the oven to keep hot. Add a little cold milk to the cornstarch and rub smooth. Bring remainder of the milk to the boiling point and add the cornstarch, meat extract, parsley, ham, liver, cheese and seasonings. Cook 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Pile the macaroni in a buttered baking dish, pour over it the cornstarch mixture and put in a hot oven to brown.

'Convenient' Cabbage Important in Diet

Cabbage is one of the best natural foods but it should be steamed or eaten raw rather than boiled.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

Solomon said, "Feed me with food convenient for me." If man is to have health and happiness he must have food "convenient" for him. We are no different today in our need for the right food than was Solomon, with all his wisdom.

The most convenient and the most natural foods are those upon which man has flourished for countless ages. Cabbage, with its rich store of vitamins, minerals and roughage for digestion, was known to man and used by him in the earliest times. In Roman days it was recommended for almost every disease. Not that those people knew anything about vitamins, as such, but they knew that cabbage was good for them.

Vitamins and mineral elements in our food are of the utmost importance to our health and strength. The vitamins are contained principally in the fresh foodstuffs unchanged by any process of man.

Cabbage is one of the best of these natural foods. It is quite unique in the vegetable world, for it is one of the few vegetables that contain all the vitamins.

There is a jingle that goes:

"A pint of milk, egg, oranges and greens
Will give you your daily vitamins."

Among the greens, none is better than the homely cabbage.

Many people boil cabbage to death. How foolish this is. It is most valuable eaten raw. Tender cabbage, shredded finely and served with some sort of dressing, especially with a French dressing made with the best of oil, lemon juice and condiments to taste, is a wholesome and a splendid food. Here you have all the vitamins unspoiled by cooking.

In cooking cabbage, it is far better to steam it than to boil it. In this way the juices with their vitamins and minerals are preserved. Some persons boil cabbage for hours. It is best cooked not more than half an hour. Too long cooking destroys the vitamins.

Cabbage is important in the diet, too, because it is a scurvy-preventing factor. It also contains much lime, which is needed in teeth and bone building.

This vegetable is well borne by the person with a normal digestion. But invalids and those with weak digestion are wise to omit it from the diet.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Is a Career a Substitute For Marriage?

Clara's offa marriage.

No. She's never tried it. No. Busted. Romance has ever clouded her days. And she's not a matchater. In fact she likes 'em . . . and she's strong for dates 'n' whoopee.

That what's wrong. Well she has serious aims in life and so she has no time for such foolishness as marriage or such trivial work as washing dishes and taking care of kiddies.

So pretty soon now she's going to start reaching for things that are "higher and better in life!"

Is she goofy? You tell her you who are dreaming of the little new life to come and cry you. Mother proud of the fine upstanding youngsters. And "trained for happy manhood and happy womanhood." Here's her wail.

Dear Sally:

I've never written to you before but I'm going to now. And I want to tell you something. I want to tell you that I'll never marry.

Tired of House Work

I suppose you will say I am silly and that I am young yet to speak so positively. But I have my reason and I'll stick to it. It's not that I don't like men. I have nothing against them. I go with boys and I smoke and dance and pet. And I love a good time.

But I'll never marry and that's that! Why do I feel this way? Because I'm fed up on taking care of children, cleaning house and washing dishes.

Oh, I like children well enough. I take care of three of them. But I want to do something better and higher in life than to wash dishes and take care of little children. That seems to me so trivial. So just as soon as I can, I am going to start reaching out for that thing I want—something higher and better in life.

What have you to say to me?

CLARA.

What have I got to say to you? Plenty, sister, and there's some of it you probably won't like. But you asked for it, so here goes!

Natural for Women

So you feel that marriage is trivial and tiresome and raising children is a stupid pursuit unworthy of real intelligence, do you?

You're wrong!

Motherhood is natural for women. Their bodies were shaped for it. Their emotions were adapted for it. It's the most important thing they can do and because it's their most natural job it's also their most joyous one. Dame Nature puts all her pets on the mother and pays her the heaviest dividends.

That doesn't necessarily mean that a mother must do every household chore or that she's a bad mother if she doesn't personally attend to every want of her child. Contrary to sentimental notions all mothers are NOT born housekeepers.

Maybe mother will serve her child better if she will let some other woman take care of it. And so it is quite possible for a woman to be a splendid mother and also be a doctor, lawyer, artist or successful business woman if she has a talent for such work.

But don't fool yourself, Clara. A career is no substitute for motherhood. No work, however exciting or remarkable is "higher" or "better" than motherhood or offers nobler service to the world. Always the great, glowing adventure of a normal woman's life lies in wifehood and motherhood.

It's as natural and necessary for a normal girl to desire wifehood as it is for her to have a nose and teeth.

A Foolish Idea

Perhaps you've had an overdose of dusting and dishwashing. Perhaps you've had the responsibility of taking care of kiddies when you were still only a kid yourself and not ready for it. If that's the case it's not surprising that you should feel tired of baby tending.

But don't let a passing weariness warp your life out of the lovely pattern God made for you, little girl. Put aside that foolish idea.

Get busy with some new work for a while until you get back a healthy perspective. Make yourself by trying other work, realize that all work becomes monotonous at times. All work seems sometimes trivial.

And then for further proof, go to some tired mother sitting at evening with her baby in her arms. She'll agree with you heartily that housework is the most tiresome of all jobs, the most monotonous.

But ask her if her baby's kiss is trivial? Ask her if the pressure of a little sleepy head on her breast ever grows monotonous. Ask her—and, as she answers, watch her eyes!

Girls, Don't Envy Screen Stars, You're Real Heroines They Portray—Fay King

By FAY KING

While millions of girls the world over are imitating the movie stars, the movie stars are really imitating these very girls.

The roles we admire most, the parts they play so well and endear themselves to us, are really portraying the life and loves of the unknown girls who are their fans.

So, instead of envying the stars and feeling that your own life is so commonplace compared with theirs, just stop to think that the real heroine of the screen is yourself.

Make the most of your own life and you will be a more real star than the one who portrays you well before the camera.

Unfortunately the private lives of some of the stars do not compare with the noble parts they play.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Has Difficult Time Restraining Her Anger

Dicky's accusation put into words was not so terrifying as the sardonic smile and the air of secret knowledge with which he had preceded his query. He was guessing at what had happened and basing his anger upon a pretext instead of the truth. This I was able to give him a truthful denial of his assumption with words and manner that were sincere if not convincing.

"He was not kissing me," I said hotly, "and you know it very well. You either are exercising your imagination overtime, as you so often say I do, or you are deliberately accusing me of something you know is false in the——"

In the hope that in the flurry you'll spill what really happened," Dicky's sardonic grin deepened, and I saw that he was according me a point as one might to an opponent in a game. I was relieved, but wary, for I was not yet sure of just how much he had seen or heard of Mr. Veritzen's response to my appeal for a respite over the holidays from his persecution of Mary and Noel.

If you really want to know what happened I'll tell you, provided you will listen quietly." I tried hard to make my voice carelessly casual.

He put up his hand and languidly hid an ostentatious yawn.

"Depends upon how long the recital is," he said, and I bit my lips to keep back an irritated rejoinder. But I knew that I must talk carefully if I did not wish a scene which would upset the whole day for me—the day which promised to be one of the busiest of my life.

"Suppose I set the coffee to perking first," I suggested. "Then by the time we have finished talking it will be ready to pour."

"With what is left of Mrs. Richard Graham pouring," Dicky gibed, and I saw that miraculously my vehement denial of his accusation and my subsequent willingness to tell him all about the interview had banished the anger with which he had returned from the hall.

"Exactly." I flashed a smile at him as I went to my improvised kitchenette which, in common with almost all the other women residents of the hotel, I maintained for an emergency breakfast or luncheon. When I had put the coffee pot on the flame again I returned to the sitting room and sat down leisurely.

"It isn't a very long story," I said with a smile, "and you were right in thinking I purposely intercepted Mr. Veritzen, although I didn't mean you to guess it just then. I would have told you later."

"Ye-a-h?" Dicky drawled, but his grin robbed his tone of the barb which otherwise would have pricked me.

"I did not want him to disturb the Underwoods," I went on—

"And, as I observed before," Dickey drawled, "you also saw an opportunity to pose as the machine in the affairs of our youthful sweethearts. Well, it appears you weren't so far wrong if old Phil's spiel about a bargain is understandable."

I held back my anger with a wrenched effort.

"He asked to come in, as I told you when I wakened you," I said evenly, "and when he had demanded to see Noel and I had told him of Noel's illness and Katherine's strictures concerning him and proposed that he should call up Katherine and ask her permission to waken him——"

"Good shot, that!" Dicky said approvingly.

"He decided not to waken Noel this morning, but to wait until this afternoon," I continued. "Then he asked me what I knew about the letters Noel and Mary had received from him."

"Aha! The old fox is getting uneasy," Dicky commented. "What did you tell him? I hope your Puritan conscience didn't thresh around until you yodeled the fact that Noel had destroyed his."

"My 'Puritan conscience,' if in existence, is hiding its head under the dresses in the closet," I retorted. "I disclaimed any real knowledge of the facts, but told him that I thought neither of the letters was destroyed if Mary had anything to say—that she was a shrewd youngster and would keep the letters as possible weapons of self-defense if they contained threats. He already had admitted to me that they were unpleasant epistles. Then he asked me to get the letters for him, and I told him I would ask Noel and Mary for them, but he shouted a vehement negative to that plan."

"Well, for Zeke's sake, what did he want you to do, steal them?"

"I don't know. All I wanted was a chance to stave things off until after the holidays, so I told him if he would agree to play a neutral game until then I would do my best to get the letters for him."

Dicky stared at me.

"Have you the slightest idea what you're letting yourself in for?" he demanded.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, January 24

A very lively and interesting day is forecast from the ruling lunar aspects. Mars will incite to particularly aggressive and constructive activities, with high initiative and attack, but there is a sign of unguarded or too precipitate moves leading to litigation or unfortunate contracts. Those in the employment of others are also under a favorable force for recognition, favors or promotion.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very lively and eventful year, with affairs moving at an accelerated pace, spurred by high initiative and enterprise.

A child born on this day should be keen, alert, active and aggressive, both mentally and physically.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Modern Life Brings New Perils.

A century ago Reginald Heber wrote these lines:

"Death rides on every passing breeze,
He lurks in every flower;
Each season has its new disease,
Its peril every hour."

Makes you shiver! Death seems to be just around the corner!

Dr. Copeland.

But, really, life isn't so precarious as all this. It was pretty uncertain when the Bishop of Calcutta wrote that quatrain but times have changed in a century.

Perhaps too, the good bishop had in mind more the importance of righteousness than he had the experience of scientific facts. Doubtless his warning was theological rather than medical. Calling to mind the uncertainties of life he sought to drive men to repentance.

Of course there is no dodging the perils that beset us every season and every hour. Death lurks in unexpected places and respects nobody. But science is making progress. Popular education is spreading knowledge of how to escape disease.

The expectation of life is far greater than it was a hundred years ago, or 50 years ago. A half century since, 42 years was the normal expectation; now it is 58 years. At least 16 years has been added to the hope of living.

Unfortunately, however, in the middle-age groups, disease is just as fatal as it was when Heber sung. Between the ages of 30 and 60, the expectation is much the same as it was then.

While science has accomplished wonders, the stress and strain of what we are pleased to call "civilization" have brought new perils. Upon heart and kidneys demands are made these days that were not common in simpler times. Diseases of these organs are more prevalent than in older times.

How are we to accomplish reforms in the physical life, such reforms as the good bishop cried for when fighting the moral evils of his day?

The answer to this lies in the education of the public in health matters. There is no need to become morbid and self-conscious as regards such things. But certainly we should not dodge health knowledge any more than we should turn aside from knowledge of the automobile or the radio.

If there are lurking dangers let us find what they are and how to avoid them. Just as we learned to destroy the mosquito because it carries malaria, we should learn how to get rid of every menace to health.

Answers to Health Queries

MISS D. H. M. Q. What can be done when the hair splits on the ends?

A.—Singeing is often helpful in such cases. A hairdresser will advise you. Avoid breaking the hair by too harsh combing or by using hot curling irons.

H. V. Q.—What will fatten the face?

A.—Try to gain weight in general. Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Exercise daily in the open air, practice deep breathing. As a tonic take cod liver oil after meals.

SALLY, Q.—Should the scalp disease seborrhea capitis be treated by a physician? What causes the disturbance?

A.—If the condition persists after improving the general health and trying simple home treatment then it should have proper medical attention and treatment. Scalp diseases may be due to a number of conditions—the condition of the health in general has a great bearing on the state of skin and scalp.

"Eager to Know," Q.—What treatment do you advise for enlarged pores?

A.—Try using hot and cold compresses alternately for fifteen minutes night and morning.

Household Hints

There would be fewer cases of enlarged tonsils and adenoids among small children if mothers would refrain from encouraging the use of pacifiers and thumb-sucking while they are infants.

If in making mayonnaise one has the unfortunate experience of having it separate, a good way to revive the creamy, smooth texture is to add a teaspoonful of unbeaten white of eggs and beat vigorously. Then when it is perfectly smooth continue adding the oil as before.

If you are fond of a bowl for cut flowers, cover the bottom thickly with small colorful pebbles and use them as supports for the flower stems. They make the glass holder a much more attractive decoration.

Encourage the maid to keep her room clean and in order, even if your guests never see it. Give her time to attend to her own domain and she is much more apt to remain contented, at the same time helping along the sanitary condition of the house.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Costume Jewelry

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a question will you please let us know whether it is proper or all right to wear a long string of crystals in the evening with a dark sleeveless dress? I am told that these beads are only to be worn with dresses which have sleeves.

B. M.

The question of wearing crystals in the evening depends entirely on the type of necklace. Sometimes, mainly when the necklace is short and is composed of especially lovely crystals, which are particularly harmonious with the color and type of the dress, a crystal necklace is the perfect necklace to wear. But I doubt very much if the long string of crystals would be very appropriate or effective with a dark sleeveless dress. One thinks of a long string of crystals as more appropriate for wearing with a daytime dress.

Flowers for the Debutante

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to give a debutante a gift before she comes out, or is it correct to give it after she comes out or not at all?

I met a most charming girl this summer and I have been wondering whether it would be correct for me and the other people who were at the camp to club together to get a gift for her?

If this is correct, will you please suggest something?

WONDERING.

The perfect gift for the debutante and the only one usually given her is the flowers that are sent to her on the day of her debut. Those blossoms are the appropriate messengers of our good wishes to her and contribute our part of the floral background that is so lovely a part of her party.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When hair has been bleached to such an extent that the shafts will not absorb water, the egg shampoo will be found more successful than the usual three eggs beaten slightly. Friction well rinse with tepid water, apply three more eggs, rinse again. Excessive bleaching makes the hair take on the "feel" and quality of jute. It is bad business.

Hands require more care than the complexion. They are subjected to more dust, harsher substances. Hands are pretty much what one makes them. Applications of cold cream are necessary not only to keep the surface smooth, but to keep hands from wrinkling. Continual washing robs the surface of natural oils that insure the epidermis from flaking and which also tends to preserve the tissues underneath the skin.

Freckles will return upon exposure to wind and sun. They can, if not too long established, be kept in abeyance by nightly applications of peroxide, followed by a slight smearing of cold cream. The skin should be protected from exposure by a brimmed hat and the generous use of powder. Powder forms a barricade against the ravages of the elements.

Eyebrow plucking was an outgrowth of rational arching, weeding away stray hairs that wouldn't stay in the home circles, but wandered outside the premises. The darling dollies fancied that if a little weeding was good, a lot was better, and some of them went around with foreheads balder than those of a new born babe. That, now, is old stuff. Eyebrows are normal, neither thick nor thin, but as they should be.

Planning . . . hoping . . . and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements. Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then—just an hour before the party—it had started. That excruciating pain which is now absolute.

Expected. Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol.

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non-narcotic; it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them beforehand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drug-store.

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker.

"Although I am only 22 years old I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it, for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family. I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. Vern L. Dennings.

DEATH DRIVER SENTENCED

Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court late yesterday sentenced James R. McCarthy, 22, of Greenleaf street, to 15 months in the workhouse when he pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of William W. Irwin, 57, of 1812 St. Mark's place.

Frank Staub, 29, of Woodruff street, arrested in the same case and indicted as an accessory, also pleaded guilty, but was not sentenced. Judge Moore said he would sentence Staub after he has received a physician's statement as to his physical condition.

Homicide detectives testified that the men were in a machine driven by McCarthy, when it struck Irwin, who was employed by the county as a watchman on the Saw Mill Run boulevard while it was under construction.

McCarthy drove into the partly completed boulevard in spite of the watchman's order to keep off the highway, detectives said, and after hitting him drove away.

SUIT CHARGES FRAUD IN DEAL

Charging he was defrauded in a real estate trade, Martin H. Singer, 500 Federal street, North Side, filed suit for $40,000 damages in Common Pleas Court against George F. Fisher, 1411 Boyle street.

Singer declared he traded an apartment house at 726 California avenue, Avalon, to Fisher for 60 feet frontage at South and West Diamond streets, now Stobbo and Burd streets, on which are several buildings, on November 14, 1927. He charged Fisher assured him the property paid $5,700 annually in rents, whereas the revenue was actually $3,326 yearly. He said he had lost $2,373 yearly over the amount expected on the basis of the trade, and also claims the value of the property so much less than the claimed value that he suffered a total loss of $40,000.

$500,000 CITY BOND ISSUES PROPOSED

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Our local, if provincial, pride swells up to overflowing and we are indignant when we read that the Los Angeles Times spreads the canard that Pittsburgh is black beneath its smoke.

Mr. Pfarr

The Los Angeles Times is among those who subscribe to Ben Bernie's allegation that, when he went to bed at night in a hotel alongside the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, he was a mere fiddler, but that when he got up in the morning he resembled an end man in a minstrel.

And then there was Miss Dolores Del Rio, of the films, who, when asked what she thought of Pittsburgh, heard her press agent, a gent of subtle humor, exclaim:

"Why, say that Pittsburgh roots her."

Well, if Pittsburgh is smoky (and, of course, it isn't), that smoke is the smoke of the mills in which is turned out the steel which goes into trains which speed people away from Los Angeles. "By golly, that's telling them."

A lady called us up and told us to rake the street car company over the coals because the motorman permitted a man to carry an empty fish barrel on a Rebecca street car one day last week. Well, we aim to please, and what does the street car company mean by permitting a man carrying an empty fish barrel to ride a Rebecca street car? What does it mean?

Our old friend, the speakeasy man, who loafs around the Lepidoptera section of Carnegie Museum, we met again the other day and he had two complaints. One was that January business is worse than ever, because every drinker is town apparently included no-drinking in his New Year's Resolution. He estimated that surprisingly few have broken the resolution so far, but he is confident that things will pick up before Washington's Birthday. His other complaint was that the stickup men have turned their unwelcome attentions to the booze joints. One was held up just a few nights ago and the cash register emptied of $600. He said they're all afraid of the mobs, so they're watching things more closely than ever. The tough part of this, to use his words, is that the joints can't complain, can't even report a stickup to the police for fear the papers will get hold of it and have a lot of fun.

Items for the paper: Public Safety Director Clark has a weakness for cartoons. When Quin Hall or Cy Hungerford does a caricature of the director it's a pretty safe bet that he'll ask for the original, no matter whether it's favorable or not. Then he hangs them on the walls of his office. On the other hand, Police Superintendent Walsh goes in for newspaper clippings which mention his name, favorably or not. He, too, frames them and hangs them on his walls. One of them is a story of his indictment in Federal Court, an indictment, incidentally, which never got anywhere. Outside Walsh's office, Bill Miller, chief clerk, continues the tradition started there. Lee McBride, once chief clerk, started it and Burke Reed carried it on. It's the business of pushing tickets to sporting events under the glass top of the desk.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This guy Hawks is so used to going so fast in his single-seated racing plane that when we kinder slowed up to 150 miles an hour in Secretary Ingalls' best two-seated plane in America, he started to get out and walk. I came by here on my way to Texas because I wanted to see just how things are out in the plantation country. Going out among it today. The relief men here say that the need is great. The city of Little Rock is fine. It's not cities, it's poor share croppers on cotton that's hurt worst, but here is the great thing about this state where they have been hit hardest. They are going to make their Red Cross quota and help to help themselves. If they can do it, no other state or city can possibly have an alibi.

War Department Meddling Roused Ire of Pershing

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER XII.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

In view of the gravity of our tonnage situation it was highly important that it be brought forcibly to the attention of the Allies. Apropos the approaching inter-Allied conference on shipping I cabled Washington August 23, 1917, in part as follows:

"'The British and especially the French have reached absolute limit of man-power and any augmentation their military force cannot be expected. Imperative hasten our organization and training so that we will have the troops contemplated your project in Europe for active service by May or June.

"Military activities of Allies on land should be strongly reinforced by combined navies and destruction U-boat bases accomplished if possible. High British army officers confidentially condemn waiting policy British Admiralty. In view of gravity of shipping question recommend our government insist upon aggressive policy by combined British and American navies.

Gen. Pershing

"'* Our Position in this war very strong. Allies now fully recognize dependence upon our co-operation and we need not hesitate demand both aggressive naval policy and full share commercial shipping. Recommend American representative shipping conference be instructed accordingly."

Numbers of officers of all armies felt very strongly that to check the losses by submarines the two navies should take some risk and attempt to destroy the bases from which these boats operated. It is not known whether any steps were ever taken to convey this suggestion to the combined navies.

Ammunition Problem

Meanwhile, a study by a joint French and American commission of the question of production of powders and explosives in France showed that the greater part of the raw materials must be imported and that, due to the shipping situation, France in December would produce only about half of the current output. It was apparent, therefore, that to avoid calamity the United States must not only furnish powder and explosives for all its own forces but must supply about half the French requirements, and the War Department was so advised.

By this arrangement a large saving of tonnage would be effected, as the weight of raw materials was 10 to 20 times that of the finished product. As nitrates for the manufacture of powder and explosives had to be imported from Chili, the hazard to shipping would be reduced by avoiding the long haul to France.

Millions of dollars were expended in the construction of plants at home in an attempt to produce nitrates, but none had been turned out before the end of the war. In view of these costly experiments, it would seem wise during peace to make some provision for the future.

Our efforts to arrange for the procurement in France of munitions, aviation, various classes of equipment and supply and the use of facilities brought our officers in close contact with bureaus of the government. In the beginning we were largely dependent upon them to make up deficiencies in many things necessary to complete our preparations.

Co-operation Lacking

The failure of the French to realize the necessity of hearty co-operation became evident very early in our relations with them.

The higher authorities apparently understood, and promises of assistance were readily given, but when we got down to actual details we encountered difficulties. This criticism especially applied to the granting of docking facilities, the allotment of rail transportation and the assignment of forests for lumber procurement.

One confusing thing was that the division of authority between bureaus and departments was not clearly defined. Even after three years of war there remained considerable question between the Zone of Operations and the Service of the Rear as to the control of munitions and transportation. The Commander-in-Chief assumed to have the final voice in the allotment of artillery, aviation and railroad rolling stock, but his authority behind the Zone of the Armies was not conceded by the bureaus of the War Office and was especially contested as to rail transportation.

In actual practice he was not really vested with authority beyond the material in the possession of the Army, but his influence as head of the Armies was such that his approval was usually necessary to insure definite action.

In our dealings with French bureaus we had to overcome many obstacles. The subordinate one might happen to encounter at the start was usually impressed with his importance and would undertake to make a decision, which would lead one to think the matter practically settled, only to find that this official had little if any authority and that his action was not approved by the senior next above him.

Then one would learn, after the loss of much time, that this was not the proper office after all. At last reaching the responsible bureau, one was likely to be told that the thing couldn't be done, no reason being apparent except that it never had been done.

Too Much Red Tape

Council Debates Concrete Or Steel for Ramp

The relative merits of steel and concrete as material for bridge ramps were being considered by members of City Council today, following a discussion yesterday of the proposed ramp for the Manchester Bridge. The Department of Public Works has recommended use of concrete. Several councilmen believe steel is more economical and has a better salvage value.

Councilman W. Y. English said: "This is a steel city. Pittsburgh is known for its steel bridge construction plants. I think we should use steel wherever possible."

Chief Engineer Charles Rengert of the Department of Public Works replied:

"The steel bridges are'nt being kept up the way they should be."

Cost of steel for a ramp is estimated at $240,000 and concrete at $302,000. The public works department contends the higher price of concrete is justified by lower upkeep costs.

Council probably will confer further on the question.

MAN KILLED, 2 HURT BY AUTOS

Two persons were injured when an automobile driven, according to a Wilmerding police report, by Patrolman Cyril P. Klockgether, of 339 Lehigh avenue, of the Pittsburgh police department, crashed into a window of Harbourt's restaurant, 417 Station street, last night.

Edward Mootz, 38, of 107 Caldwell street, who was standing on a ladder in the restaurant, was knocked down and sustained severe injuries of the head. Louis Miller, 58, of 354 Marguerite street, who was outside the restaurant, was cut by flying glass, police said.

His ticket was the first drawn from the barrel and was handed to him by Betty Voltz, 11, of 416 Barnes street. Young is a chemist for the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, Vandergrift.

Officials announced at the close of the show that the attendance was more than 8,500, or about 900 more than on the Thursday night show in 1928. At one time a double line extended from the Baum boulevard entrance around the corner of the Garden for a distance of more than a city block.

In order to accommodate them emergency entrances with four extra ticket sellers were thrown open.

At 9 p. m. the Garden was so packed that more than 1,000 persons were turned away.

RIVER-RAIL FUNDS TO BE ASKED

Manchester Project Pushed; Controller to Draft Bill To Finance Improvements

An ordinance providing for a councilmanic bond issue to handle projects suggested by the Department of Public Works will be prepared by Controller James P. Kerr for presentation to Council, probably next Monday.

The items total $250,000. A similar ordinance will be prepared for a like amount for a river-rail terminal in the Manchester district. Motion for the action was made at a councilmanic committee meeting yesterday by Councilman Harry Little.

WATER LINE FUND ADDED

A $50,000 item was inserted by Councilman W. Y. English for water line extensions on the Manchester ramp.

Among improvement projects on the list presented to the committee were $70,000 for widening of Seventh avenue at the site of the new Gulf Building, $30,000 for a new garage at the city's East End asphalt plant, $40,000 for improvement of the Murdock entrance to Schenley Park, $10,000 for purchase of the Born property, near the Mt. Royal road, for the Forward avenue dump site, and $50,000 for improvements to the Diamond market.

EXPECT RENT INCREASE

The market improvement project, according to plans drawn by Richard Neff, city architect, calls for installation of show windows around the building, rearrangement of stalls and a new refrigeration system. Council has been informed that if the work is carried out merchant tenants have agreed to an increase of 20 per cent in rentals, besides paying for current used for refrigeration.

HUNTING LODGE RAID NETS 2

Two men alleged to have barred a party of hunters from the hunters' own lodge in West Whitfield Township, Cambria County, where a 125-gallon still was in operation, were in the custody of prohibition agents today.

The two under arrest gave their names as Carimelo Distefano, of Johnstown, and John Pezzno, of Seward.

When the hunting party arrived at the lodge Wednesday, they were routed by two men armed with a rifle and shotgun, it was reported. One of the party detected an odor of moonshine and notified prohibition headquarters in Pittsburgh. Agents went to the place, arrested the two men, seized the still and destroyed 22 barrels of mash and 90 gallons of moonshine, they reported.

Cincinnati Mayor Praises Pittsburgh as Ideal

Pittsburgh was praised as an industrial and cultural ideal by Mayor Russell Wilson, of Cincinnati, in an address last night at the seventeenth annual dinner of the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh in the William Penn Hotel.

Mayor Wilson said:

"We look up to Pittsburgh in Cincinnati. We are proud to be one of the riparian suburbs of the city of Pittsburgh."

Mayor Wilson was introduced by Judge Frank P. Patterson, Toastmaster Herbert A. Leech, president of the association, delivered an address of welcome. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the Mt. Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, North Side.

Comparing city government in Cincinnati with that of other American cities, Wilson said:

"In Cincinnati we have done away with ornithological voting. You don't vote for the eagle; you don't vote for the rooster. We have real non-partisan government in Cincinnati. We lifted 5,000 civil employes out of politics so that they can keep the money they earn in their pockets instead of passing it on into the dirty hands of politicians."

Asked his views on the Wickersham report, Mayor Russell said:

"I am a liberal and have read the Wickersham report with its individual opinions and I fully expect the United States Supreme Court to render a decision any day in favor of the defendant, with the majority of the judges in favor of the plaintiff."

FARM BANQUET HEARS CAPPER

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.—United States Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, principal speaker at a banquet of the State Farm Board here last night, devoted his comments on the Wicker-Iseri Commission's report half to the Kansas wheat growers and half to the enforcement and wisdom of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Kansan, in an address in which he lauded the agricultural progress in Pennsylvania, especially commended the Farm Board, merely touched on the Wickersham report, the inference being that the farm board had a stiff task but that its members were sincere and were making some headway.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot spoke briefly, touching upon his interest in agriculture in Pennsylvania.

The honorary degree of "Master Farmer" was conferred on 13 men at the banquet. Of the 13 honored, 12 are Pennsylvanians.

Walsh said:

"The Helping Hand and other organizations will take care of any unemployed or homeless man if he will go there and register. Begging on the streets has become a nuisance, especially near office buildings, and must be stopped."

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23.—(AP).—A referendum on the prohibition amendment was advocated by Dr. S. Parks Cadman, Brooklyn radio preacher, in an address before the Ohio pastors' convention here last night.

Dr. Cadman said the Wickersham report on the liquor question shows a "violent state of mind and a variety of conflict." He said:

"Prohibition lost ground after our first fatal trust to legislation and the falling off of our efforts in education on the subject."

SCHOOL 'POOL' SUSPECT HELD

L. M. Thomas, Negro proprietor of a barber shop at 408 Logan street, opposite the Franklin Public School, was held for court today under $2,500 bail on charge of operating a lottery by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, of Center Avenue Police Court.

The case was given to the jury late yesterday. Commonwealth witnesses testified that Parsons shot the officer after Wolf had ordered him to go home.

In his own defense Parsons said that while he and the officer were fighting, Parsons took a knife from his overcoat pocket and both of them tried to get it. The weapon was discharged during the struggle, Parsons testified.

WONDERFUL

Radio Tube Improvement

4-pillar tubes give new, thrilling performance to thousands of sets. Users are amazed

MORE than "just another new tube" . . . 4-pillar tubes! A unique, new principle giving vastly better performance. Bringing clearer, more lifelike reception, eliminating a host of radio ills, making new radio sets out of old! The design of these new tubes is patented . . . four pillars to anchor their fragile elements. All other tubes use only two.

Four rigid supports, one at each corner of a square, make 4-pillar tubes strong where others have been weak. The delicate elements are the vital part of a tube. Four supports hold them in place, guard them against the destructive bumps of shipment, and protect them against vibration from dynamic speakers. Two supports leave them in danger . . . and the entire performance of your radio may suffer!

Free Home Demonstration

This is no imaginary improvement. It's definite, tangible . . . you can see the four pillars inside. And you can hear the amazing difference in tone . . . hear it now, in your own radio. For you can try 4-pillar tubes without cost or obligation!

National Carbon Company, Inc., has arranged with Eveready dealers to give you a free home demonstration. Put a complete set of 4-pillar tubes in your radio. Words, alone, can't tell you. Let your ears decide the difference in tone! That tells you more than any electrical test in your dealer's store. If your present tubes are a year or more old, you can't afford to miss this opportunity. Get the free home test . . . try these 4-pillar tubes for volume, clarity and tone . . . telephone the nearest Eveready Raytheon dealer now.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.
General Offices: New York, N. Y.

Unit of Union Carbide [illegible] and Carbon Corporation

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation, the many fragile parts in the tube can be assembled with watch-making accuracy, and cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position! They are always poised for performance, like the strings of a fine piano, tuned for a concert!

In ordinary tubes, the many delicate parts have only a two-legged foundation—like the goal-posts on a football field. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps, vibration from dynamic speakers—all can impair their vital accuracy. And that means uncertain results . . . unreliable reception.

The radio service-man, who keeps your set in repair, is a technical expert . . . he knows tubes! He can explain the value of the 4-pillar principle, and demonstrate it, in your own radio set.

GROCER SURVEY HERE URGED BY SPEAKER

Manufacturers Hear N. Y. Expert Tell of Benefits Elsewhere; Aid to Ditsrict

Reflected improvements in real estate, credit and general business would be felt in Pittsburgh through a federal survey of the independent grocery field by the Commerce Department was assured by J. W. Millard, of New York, in speaking today before members of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Represenatives in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Mr. Millard, who was one of the leaders in establishing the Louisville survey, was brought here by the association to suggest measures for the manufacturers' representatives to consider in seeking the government to make a local survey.

Representatives of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and other organizations attended.

Declaring a survey of the grocery field was much broader than benefiting that one business, Millard said:

"As an example of benefits in Louisville. There were 360 bankrupt independent grocers in 1928. The survey was started the next year and bankrupts were reduced to 15 and last year brought the number to three.

"Stores that immediately took advantage of the findings started to renovate, refurnish the equipment, purchase goods on a sounder basis. In less than four months after a model store was established, 60 stores were going through this process. Twelve stores more in a town 50 miles from Louisville started the same improvements. That meant business for carpenter and electrical contractors, painters, equipment houses and others."

EXPLAINS DELAY ON POLICE CAR

Charges that he had been "taking his time" about advertising for bids on the new police and detective radio-equipped automobiles while criminals ran rampant throughout the city were denied today by Bertram L. Succop, director of the City Bureau of Property and Supplies.

It had been planned, officials said, to procure the cars in time for preliminary tests with the new police radio station being erected on Mt. Washington.

Defending his position, Succop said:

"I received requisitions for he machines January 16. I intended presenting them to Council last Monday, but due to the meeting being held in the morning instead of the afternoon, so members could go to Harrisburg for the inauguration, I was unable to do so."

OPERA SUPPORT URGED HERE

Whether Pittsburgh is to have an annual season of grand opera by the Chicago Civic Opera Company depends upon the success of that company's appearances at Syria Mosque February 9 and 10, Eugene L. Connelly, under whose direction the company comes to Pittsburgh, said today. He reported the demand for tickets was good.

Mr. Connelly

Appearance of the opera company here is sponsored by a group of 60 Pittsburghers. Connelly said that while the company has not appeared in Pittsburgh since February, 1927, it is the desire of the officers of the opera association to include this city in the company's annual tours.

Among Chicagoans sponsoring the company are Samuel Insull, former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, Edward F. Swift, Louis B. Kuppenheimer and Robert I. Randolph. STYLISTS PRESENT NEWEST CREATIONS FOR RESORT WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—We are again engulfed in a sea of beach fashions and other modes intended for the delights of Riviera life. Instead of choosing umbrellas to protect us from the elements, it is grand to be choosing wide beach hats designed to protect fair wearers from the rays of the Riviera sun. And it is just as delightful to try on the lovely sports ensembles, outfits that are quite intriguing in their artfully designed simplicity. For the winter resort things shown so far are extremely well done and are a pleasant forerunner of spring and summer clothes, for they all have an unostentatious look of good breeding about them, a quality and a description that will be readily understood by the woman who is really clothes conscious. Clothes for the Riviera have plenty of color, but are not too vivid, and even the ordinary little jersey suit is made with a wealth of attention to cut, line and design.

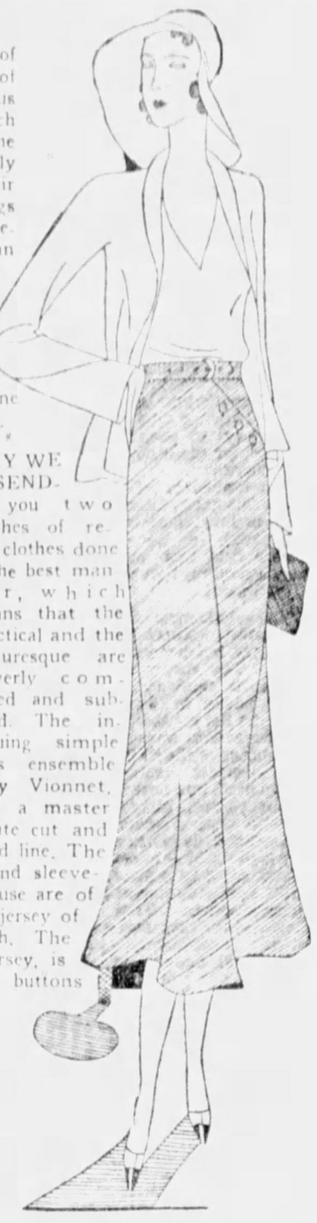
TODAY WE ARE SENDING you two sketches of resort clothes done in the best manner, which means that the practical and the picturesque are cleverly combined and subdued. The intriguing simple sports ensemble is by Vionnet, who is a master of intricate cut and well-defined line. The jacket and sleeveless blouse are of white wool jersey of very fine mesh. The skirt is of red jersey, is circular in line and buttons diagonally at one side. There is a red leather belt.



THE WIDE BEACH HAT comes from Blanche et Simone and is most picturesque and becoming. Coarsely woven, natural straw makes the droopy brim and the oddly pointed crown with a pleated fan-like piece at the base in back is of green glazed linen. This is the type of hat that will no doubt be part of the equipment of every beachcomber next summer.

AUTO CO. WILL DOUBLE OUTPUT

Plans to build 50,000 Auburn automobiles during 1931 were announced by N. E. McDarby, director of sales, and Frank Sheadle, district manager of the Auburn Automobile Company, who arrived here today to attend the Pittsburgh Automobile Show.

The figure represents twice the production of the company during any other year. Plans to double newspaper advertising during the coming year were also announced by Mr. McDarby.

With dealers' commitments in, Mr. McDarby said the plants of the company throughout the country were working day and night to fill the required orders. He also predicted that February would be the biggest sales month in the history of the company. Business is running 18 per cent greater than the previous high month, May, 1929, he said.

News in Want Ads

This is not a dog show, but a few Boston pups will be on display at the home of the owner, Saturday night and Sunday at noon. They are for sale and the ad states they will be sold very reasonable.

Girls look! Mrs. B——, Squirrel Hill, will engage a girl for general housework. If you are looking for work, why not look for her at now?

This sounds like pre-war days. The owner wants $1,000 as a down payment on new home of six rooms, tile bath, hardwood floors throughout. The ad states property is in a splendid location and the selling price is only $6,900.

A business girl can share with another business girl a beautiful furnished room on Highland avenue. The rental is $5.50, and phone number is given in the ad.

A $400 monthly income is what a news stand and confectionery business is producing for the present owner. He wants to sell it. It's in a postoffice building and in a good live town.

TECH BANS SPRING DRILLS

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Plaid Alone in Policy. | Cooper's Stuff Revived.
Johnson's Flag Hopes. | Handicaps of Lombardi.

PITT, DUKES CONTINUE SPRING DRILLS

CARNEGIE TECH, the first school in the district to abolish spring football practice, will be playing a lone hand in the new policy as far as the other colleges of this city are concerned. From present indications there will be no departure from the old customs at either University of Pittsburgh or Duquesne University, and spring gridiron drills probably will be continued at both institutions while Wally Steffen keeps his Tartans idle until fall.

Judge W. P. Steffen

In the case of Duquesne, at least, spring practice is a certainty. Elmer Layden says the early workouts were adopted to lessen the strain of fall training and will be retained as promising better results than any other plan. Chances are that Pitt will follow the same course. W. Don Harrison, director of athletics, said that while no definite decision had been reached and the matter had not been even discussed, the Panthers in all probability would continue to have spring practice this year, as usual. Coach Sutherland is known to be a firm believer in the benefits of the spring sessions.

UP AT DUQUESNE, Coach Layden says spring practice was adopted in the first place as a means of improving old conditions and he holds it to be the more beneficial system all around. He sees in it a way to lighten the training burden of the players by dividing their labors.

"I believe it is vastly better for the players to reduce the length of the fall training period and let them do some of the work in the spring," Layden said. "Too much practice in the fall has a tendency to make them stale. They may be tired by the time the season opens or before it is very far advanced. That makes playing too much like work and renders the boys more liable to injury. By doing about two weeks' work in the spring that staleness can be avoided."

ABOLISHING OR CONTINUING the spring practice sessions appears to be largely an individual question, in which each school must be governed by its own condition. Carnegie never went in for it to any great extent—merely 10 days or less. One of the main objections to spring practice, which caused the coaches to recommend that it be made not compulsory, does not apply to Pittsburgh colleges.

That is, that it may interfere with the wishes of some of the football players to take part in other sports in the spring. The other spring sports that attract students elsewhere are chiefly baseball and rowing. Rowing never was on the college athletic calendar here, though there is no good reason why it should not be, and all the big schools of this district dropped baseball several years ago.

WALTER JOHNSON is basing his hopes for a Washington pennant mainly on his pitching staff. He says it looks good for close to 100 victories, and he is so well satisfied that he will make no experiments in the pitching line at training camp. Johnson believes Bump Hadley will win 25 games, and that Crowder, Jones, Liska, Brown, Marberry, Burke and Fisher will give the club enough additional strength to smash the dynasty of the Athletics.

Joe Sewell

INSTEAD OF PASSING out of the majors, Joe Sewell, veteran infielder dropped by Cleveland, may be found with a National League club this year. He believes some Heydler club, though unwilling to risk the waiver price of $7,500 to get him, will be willing to give him a trial now that he is free.

Sewell refuses to believe that he is done as a big leaguer. He says his poor showing last year was the result of a spring illness, not a sign that he had reached the end of his rope. He expects to stay in the fast set and to demonstrate that the Indian management blundered in letting him out.

RARELY DOES A baseball deal require so much time for consummation as was used up in a dicker just closed wereby the Giants sold Catcher Art Veltman to the Braves. Negotiations for the transfer of the backstop, farmed to Bridgeport in 1930, were opened last fall.

Another official Giant bulletin confirms the report of several weeks ago that Irish Meusel would be dropped as coach. Irish is out and George Burns, former outfield star, has been taken on in his place.

FROM NEW YORK comes an announcement that Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, has "introduced something new in baseball training stunts this winter and almost any afternoon can be found at a New York ice rink skating himself into condition." The assertion that this is a new stunt will be interesting to Wilbur Cooper, former Pirate pitcher. A dozen years ago, no less, Coop used to put himself in shape every winter by that very method. He was a daily patron of the local ice rink, and found skating a great conditioner for the diamond season.

BROOKLYN'S NEW CATCHER, Ernesto Lombardi, is coming up to the big leagues under an appalling handicap. For, according to Tommy Holmes, Lombardi is the image of Larry McLean, has feet like Primo Carnera, a nose like Rollie Zeider, and can give Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx and the Mexican army lessons in eating.

In spite of any drawbacks, however, Lombardi is said to be a real pickup. The Oakland recruit is still a bit clumsy behind the plate, but his throwing arm is so good that he has led all the Coast league catchers for two seasons in assists, and his hitting power is attested by averages of .398, .377, .366 and .370 for the last four years.

TO APPRECIATE THE general run of ring matches offered in the Pittsburgh district, you need only look at some of the stuff the fans must endure in other parts of the country. Out in Lansing, Mich., for instance, they've dug up Phil McGraw again.

Ted Meredith

Detroit's Greek florist-fighter announced his retirement several months ago, after nearly everybody had beaten him, but now he's got an idea that he can come back like Billy Petrolle. And they're going to send him against Tony Herera next Tuesday night, which probably means that Tony will knock the idea out of him in much less time than would be required to give the fans their money's worth of real fighting.

WHAT'S THE TOUGHEST job in sports? In the opinion of John D. O'Reilly, Georgetown track coach, it's the quarter-mile run, in which he holds Ted Meredith to have been the greatest specialist of all time. "They must give all they've got in the 440," he said. "There's no rest. A quarter of a mile away there's the tape and it takes classy sprinters 48 to 50 seconds to make it. They're straining all the way, giving all they've got. Hockey's tough on a player. It's the fastest game in sports, but there's no comparison between that nerve-wracking, muscle-straining 50 seconds or less of a 440, during which it takes every bit of heart in a man to win, and a minute or less of the fastest hockey. Only one sport can compare with the quarter-mile run, and that's rowing. But even in rowing the oarsman has that lapse when he brings his blade back. That fractional effort gives strength for another effort."

W. P. I. A. L. FIRST HALF CHASE ENDS

GAMES TODAY

CITY LEAGUE

SECTION I

Peabody at Schenley.
Westinghouse at Connelley.
South at Fifth.

SECTION II

Carrick at Langley.
Vocational at Oliver.
Perry at Allegheny.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Westinghouse at Peabody.
Baxter at Liberty.
Gladstone at Allerdice.

SECTION II

Herron at South.
Connelley at Arsenal.
Fifth at Somers.

Oliver at Perry.
Langley at South Hills.
Latimer at Knoxville.

The scrap for second place in Section I of the City League continued today as South and Fifth Avenue tie up in the feature contest of the league program, while in Section II, where Allegheny is making a runaway race, the leaders meet with what may be a strenuous test in Perry.

The first-half campaign comes to a close with next Tuesday's contests. Triumphs for the two leaders today, Westinghouse and Allegheny, will practically assure their holding the leads to start the second round, and those teams fighting for advantageous positions as runners-up can set themselves well with wins today.

SOUTH PASSERS SET

South had a day of rest Tuesday, and watched Fifth and Allderdice battle. The game at Fifth this afternoon promises action of the most hectic sort. Should the unexpected happen, and Peabody knock off Westinghouse, the victor will find itself in a tie with the Brushton entry for first place.

In the other Section I game, Schenley seeks to get back into the running by taking over Connelley.

Section II offers, besides the Allegheny-Perry clash, a meeting between Carrick and Langley at Langley and Vocational and Oliver at Oliver. South Hills, with four games won and one lost, rests in second place and has an off day, but should Allegheny be defeated, the Cuddaback entry will gain an automatic tie for the lead.

In the Junior division, in Section I, Westinghouse tackles Peabody; Baxter meets Liberty, and Gladstone takes on Allerdice. In Section II, Herron meets South; Connelley engages Arsenal and Fifth hooks up with Somers. Section III presents Oliver at Perry, Langley at South Hills and Latimer meets Knoxville.

W. P. I. A. L. CARD GOOD

The W. P. I. A. L. card sparkles with feature attractions as the first half chase comes to an end. In several sections, the leadership for the first half hangs in balance as unbeaten rivals clash.

New Kensington, unbeaten in Section I, meets Tarentum, which is in a position to cause the defending champs plenty of trouble. New Kensington met and passed one stiff test Tuesday in defeating Har-Brack.

In Section III, what probably will be the banner attraction of the day, brings two unbeaten fives, New Castle and Butler. Both quintets have romped through their games to date. The game is booked for the New Castle floor.

Duquesne and Homestead, natural and sectional rivals, clash at Homestead in Section VII. The winner will enter the second round with an unsullied record and in complete possession of the lead.

North Braddock and Turtle Creek and Rankin and Braddock clash in Section VIII features. Turtle Creek has an opportunity of crashing the North Braddock entry, one of the best in the entire W. P. I. A. L. Cecil and McDonald hope to settle the issue in Section XIV, where the two are tied. The complete schedule follows:

Section I.

Springdale at Parnassus.
Arnold at Freeport.
Tarentum at New Kensington.

Section II.

Ambridge at Sewickley.
Bellevue at Avalon.
Ben Avon at Leetsdale.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE SABBATICAL RIVER—The Sabbatical River (Nahr el Arus), which flows from Mount Lebanon, Syria, is so called because it flows for six days in the week and rests on the seventh. This is the most famous of the so-called "intermittent rivers," which are numerous in that region. "Nahr el Arus" was well-known to the ancients, and is probably the original of the legendary "Sambattion," famous in Hebrew folklore. THE POPULAR "J" OF THE DAVISES—Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, have five children, James, Jr., Jane, Joan, Jewel and Jean. Mrs. Davis' name also is Jean.

Two non-league games, bringing together four crack teams, occupy the spotlight in local basketball circles tonight. The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House quintet will have as its weekly attraction on the Settlement House floor the strong Akron Zeppelins, of Akron, O., while the W. U. Hoyles, of the West Penn League, oppose the D. C. Rodgers passers, of Slippery Rock, Pa.

The Zeppelins and Rodgers fives have compiled enviable basketball records and are coming here bent on taking the measure of the local passers. The Hoyle-Rodgers game will be staged on the St. Joseph's Lyceum court in Mt. Oliver, and is expected to draw a large crowd.

All eyes in the West Penn League will be focused on the Sharpsburg High School court tonight, the attraction being the second battle between the Ray E. Schneiders, champions of the league, and the Penn Five, last year's titleholder. The Schneiders scored a victory over Puss Ferraro and his mates earlier in the season and the home boys are eager to even that score.

The Foresters play at Atlantic, while B. & O. is the attraction of the Pittsburghers in two Greater Pittsburgh League games; Sewickley plays at Irene Kaufmann Settlement House in the Wagner Institutional League, while Hill Top is at Downtown Y in the County Amateur circuit.

The Trojan Club, winner of the first half championship of the Junior League, will meet the Kelly Miller High School team, of Clarksburg, W. Va., tomorrow night at Center Avenue Y. M. C. A. The two Negro quintets have been enjoying fine seasons and their follows are anticipating a great game.

SHULGOLD TOASTMASTER

Jacob Shulgold will be toastmaster at the testimonial banquet to be given for J. Rogers Flannery, former national A. A. U. junior handball champion, at the Keystone Club tomorrow evening. Speakers will include James C. Mace and G. D. Shrom.

That's nothing compared with the average ballyhoo on a big football game or a heavyweight championship fight or a world series . . . But a lot of words, nevertheless . . . DOUGLAS PLAYS BRIDGEVILLE

By TOM BIRKS.

Tomorrow afternoon will find the first semi-final contest in the West Penn soccer cup series being staged at the Homewood playgrounds. Clan Douglas, of the Central League, stacks up against Bridgeville, of the Keystone loop. The game appears to be one of the best semi-finals to be played in this tourney in years, and since Douglas is credited with having the best defense in the Central loop, fans are wondering how the Black and White cracks will show against Bridgeville.

The game will be called at 2:30. Referee McArdle has been assigned to handle it.

PRELIMINARY GRID WORK ABANDONED

By JESS CARVER.

Hereafter football will be exclusively an autumn sport at Carnegie Tech. The Skibo athletic authorities announced this morning that spring football practice has been permanently abandoned.

Hal Fair

Instead of going against the wishes of the coaching staff, the new policy was established with the full approval of Judge Walter P. Steffen, Bob Waddell and the other men actively in charge of developing Carnegie's elevens.

In fact Judge Steffen sat in on the proceedings that resulted in the radical move. Attending Frank J. Lanahan's dinner-dance in honor of the varsity and freshmen football squads here last Saturday, Steffen played a prominent part in the all-day discussion that finally brought about the decision.

Although Carnegie Tech's action comes almost on the heels of the recent violent outbursts against the over-emphasis of football, with compulsory spring practice one of the chief points of attack, the athletic heads of the institution deny that any public or private pressure was responsible for it.

DISRUPTS PLANS

Their position is that the academic curriculum will not permit them to go into spring practice on the same scale as many other schools whose subjects are not exclusively technical, and that the usual 10 days devoted to the drills do little more than disrupt other plans of the players.

There is little doubt, however, that some hardships will be worked upon the coaching staff this year, for most of the 1930 varsity will be lost by graduation, and there are certain to be some absolutely new faces in the Tartan lineup next fall. These newcomers will have to be produced and developed exclusively in the fall training camp, giving them only about three weeks to work into the Plaid style of play.

GENEVA MEETS BETHANY

Kenny Loeffler and his much-kicked-around Geneva College Covenanters will stick their noses into a very hot spot tonight in a Tri-State Conference basketball game. The Covenanters, beaten already this week by Waynesburg in a league engagement, have the undefeated Bethany Bisons to get past tonight.

Bethany and Westminster have been the sensations of the district season to date. Both are undefeated. Bethany has numbered Juniata, Penn State, Thiel and Allegheny among its victims. The chances are about two-to-one that Geneva will join this list of notables tonight.

STARS LOST

The loss by graduation last spring of Len Friedman and of Slim Ransom, by virtue of the fact that the big feller has put in his allotted time as a varsity performer, has been a greater blow to the Genevians than the boys first figured. Hal Fair, former New Brighton High School star, Capt. Montgomery Grahame and Attiman have been doing their best, but so far, it hasn't been quite good enough.

Bethany can gain undisputed possession of first place in the conference by winning tonight.

PITT GOES WEST

Having successfully snagged the first game of the series with Carnegie, Pitt's Panther ball club Pullmans Westward Ho! tonight, and tomorrow will do serious battle with Notre Dame.

Last year the Panthers walloped the Irish twice, with comparative ease, thereby causing George Keogan, the wild-eyed Irish mentor, considerable pain, pain.

Carnegie, too, returns to the wars tomorrow away from home. The Tartans, broken-hearted over the loss to Pitt, have one they must not take too lightly in Geneva at Beaver Falls.

THIEL ELECTS FRAMPTON

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 23.—William Frampton, stellar tackle, has been elected Thiel College football captain for next fall. Frampton, a junior, has been one of the mainstays of the Thiel line for two years.

He is the second Greenville product to be named to the leadership of a Thiel athletic team.

SWIM AT DOWNTOWN Y

The Downtown Y. M. C. A. swimming team stopped the team from the Youngstown Y. M. C. A. in the Downtown "Y" pool at 8 o'clock tonight. The local team won at Youngstown on December 3.

The Windsor Bulldogs will appear at Duquesne Garden tomorrow night with Art Jackets as their guests.

The invasion of the Canadians is welcomed by local fandom because Windsor helped to provide two of the fastest, closest and most thrilling ice battles seen here this season, and it is welcomed by the Yellow Jackets because the local skaters have been able to pick up fair purses at the expense of the Bulldogs in the previous jousts.

SERIES DEADLOCKED

The Windsor-Pittsburgh series at present is deadlocked at two ties and a win apiece. Few clubs in the International League can boast as good a record against the fast skaters from across the border.

Tomorrow night's game will mark the Bulldogs third appearance here and if history is repeated the clash will end in a 4-4 deadlock. The two other battles at the Garden produced 10 goals but no decision.

Thrilling plays spell fans to be anticipated every time the Jackets and Bulldogs meet so long as they continue their present styles of play. Both clubs favor an open game and both depend on a powerful attack, rather than an airtight defense, for victory.

STRONG FRONT LINES

Pittsburgh and Windsor also are alike in that they each boast three front lines of about equal strength. Most clubs in the circuit have at least one set of forwards which is able to do nothing more than hold foemen at bay while the goal-getters rest. Such front-line trios invariably slow down the play, but there have been no lulls in Jacket-Windsor duels because every line that appears on the ice is just as dangerous as its predecessor.

Pittsburgh club officials realize that the Bulldogs are capable of extending the locals to the limit and long workouts have been very much in order since the victory over Detroit on Tuesday.

JACKETS STRONGER

At present the Jackets boast a success string of three wins and a tie. They are stronger and in better condition now than ever before and their recent advance in the standings has fired them with ambition to achieve greater heights.

Cleveland forced Pittsburgh back into fifth place by picking up a point at the expense of Syracuse on Wednesday, but the race is so close that the Jackets can hurdle the Indians and move up to within a game of third place by winning tomorrow.

SENATORS MAY BE SOLD

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Ottawa Journal says plans are under way for the purchase of the Ottawa Senators National Hockey League club by a group of local sportsmen. The group of sportsmen, the paper says, became interested following rumors the club might be moved to another city.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XI.

[illegible] with a check [illegible] and a [illegible] with a good [illegible] Tex [illegible] in peace and [illegible]. A man with that much money [illegible] in those days and Tex knew [illegible] he could manipulate the money and quit the game of risk from then on.

He didn't dream that his next move would start his name whizzing around the world. Through with the game of risks? Egad, he hadn't begun! The dice weren't even warm. The cards hadn't been taken out of the wax paper, the wheel hadn't been made to whirl [illegible]'s swiftest.

Rickard hadn't even dreamed of a House That Tex Built. Three million dollar gates! Had any man walked in at that moment that he would love to promote one, Tex would have had him shot as a common coyote.

[illegible] Tex had been [illegible] a San Francisco newspaper. The sports page, of course. Dash, talk and clash of matching Joe Gans and Battling Nelson in San Francisco for the world lightweight title. Bat had defeated Jabez Britt, the "white" lightweight champion, and only Gans stood in his way as absolute ruler of the lightweight roost.

NELSON BOUT

It is an odd fact that Rickard had no use for Nelson even before he had thought of putting Gans, the Old Master, into Nelson together.

Labor Day around the Goldfield diggings was an event in the lives of the miners and the natives and they wanted a little kick in the way of entertainment.

It was a stroke of genius that Rickard had to come to Goldfield to fight Nelson, but Jack Clifford!

He had sent a telegram to Nelson, offering him $5,000 and a $5,000 side bet to fight Clifford. Big money in those days, and Nelson sat up. Clifford had been cleaning up around the mining camps and Rickard thought it would be a good idea to get Nelson and shock the world by having Clifford beat him out. Then, [illegible] Clifford the [illegible] was [illegible] at [illegible] Lake City at the time.

Rickard [illegible] sent the offer of the Cyclone to Tex. The same day Tex had a telegram from Gans. Gans, [illegible] to Tex, had got to a [illegible] and was all set. Nelson [illegible].

"What are your terms to fight Joe Gans for the lightweight title in Goldfield?"

NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

Nelson had reluctantly backed a match with Gans on the plea that Joe's record wasn't clean and that he would be hurting his own reputation if he mixed with the Old Master. Bat had received $18,641 as his share of the fight with Britt and he thought he had come to the jumping-off place in the world. Surely little never would be a larger share of a purse than that slice. Just to shut up this unknown fellow, Rickard, on the Gans question. Bat asked for the largest guarantee ever to be paid a fighter anywhere on earth up to that time. And that's just where he underestimated the gambling spirit of Tex Rickard.

Bat sent this message:

"Clifford Okay. $5,000 my end and $5,000 side bet. Will meet Gans for $20,000. Post money with the San Francisco Call."

But would have wagered $20,000 of his own savings that he had heard the last of this Tex Rickard person.

He hadn't turned around a dozen times before he got this reply to his message:

"Will give you $20,000 to fight Gans to a finish on Labor Day. Money posted. Cook & Co. Bank, Goldfield. Will have same transferred to Salt Lake City or San Francisco Call. Answer. Tex Rickard."

"Hold money. Am taking next train to Goldfield."

PUTS UP PURSE IN GOLD

And Bat came. It was one of Tex's best stories when he told how he had placed the $30,000 purse for the two fighters in gold pieces piled in the bank window, and how Bat came to town and walked up and down in front of the window, hour after hour, getting a shot of the piled gold from every angle and every sort of light. Bat was money-mad and he broke out in a rash at the sight of that gold.

"Never seed a fellow so excited about a little dough as Bat was," said Tex. "He jess couldn't take hees eyes off that pile. We had a couple of handy gun hombres watching the gold in an offhand way and we told 'em to keep an eye on Bat as well. It wouldn't have surprised me one bit to have heard that Bat had chucked cobble stones through the bank window and made hees getaway."

BATTLER RAISES ANTE

Gans had agreed to take $10,000 of the $30,000 purse with $5,000 for expenses, and eventually, when Nelson heard about that extra thousand he kicked up such a fuss that Tex promised him $2,000 for training expenses besides his $20,000 guarantee.

It has been said that Tex panhandled for that bout, went around to the different places, banks, gambling halls and mining concerns, getting $1,000 here, $2,000 there, and, in some cases, $5,000 handouts to finance the bout. Al Meyers, who discovered Goldfield, is credited by some as having originated the idea of holding the bout.

This Tex always denied vehemently. He wanted to rest on the laurels of always having gone it on his own. He was tickled 14 kinds of pink years later, when Charles Cochran, the English promoter, and Billy Biads, Cochran's American theatrical partner, backed away from the Dempsey and Carpentier bout Meyers, some claim, wanted the bout to entertain the miners on Labor Day. If there was any originating it was by Rickard and he got his first hands after seeing Jimmy Britt and Terry McGovern box in New York while on a trip to that city.

RICKARD CALLS BLUFF

Nelson was stumped when he got the offer for the Gans fight. He had to accept under the circumstances. Tex was calling his bluff and rather than be charged with fearing Gans, Bat accepted the terms. While the articles were being made, Rickard, fearing that Battling Nelson, Nelson's manager, might run out on the boat, had sent a telegram to Terry McGovern, offering the Terrible One $2,000 to fight Jimmy Britt or Hod Nolan or Steve Flanagan or [illegible] of that ilk. If it would [illegible] Tex [illegible] $10,000 more [illegible] Rickard vowed he was on his own.

It is rather significant that Joe Humphreys, acting for McGovern about that time, Sam Harris being busy with budding theatrical enterprises, got Rickard's telegram.

WINS OVER HUMPHREYS

That night Joe went around to the Metropole in New York, famous as a meeting place for the bright people of the world, displaying the message he had received from some nut in Goldfield wherever that might be, offering the great Terry $30,000. Everybody had a good laugh and Joe sent back a reply, collect, telling the unknown Tex that Terry couldn't accept, but that Napoleon Bonaparte was on his way to pick up such loose change.

Years later, Joe Humphreys became the unknown Rickard's mouthpiece from the rings that Rickard built. It took a long time for Humphreys to warm up to Tex. Joe, one of the old school New Yorkers, resented the invasion of any Westerner in the boxing field. Joe always felt that New York promotion was for New Yorkers. He never suspected that Rickard was going to reach the godly heights he finally attained.

Lansford in Evansville, Ind., after having previously battled Langford in the amateur ranks. . . . Others he fought around Chicago were Snowflakes Wright, who later came to Pittsburgh; Cowboy Dula and Benny (Kid) Stanley, and he was matched for a bout with Jackie Fields, which the latter declined just before he won the world welterweight title.

Brent's first three bouts in the Pittsburgh district resulted in defeats by Hugh Fetzer, Harry Spencer and Al Becker. . . Then he got going and gave Young Saylor two hard fights, knocked out Mickey Solomen and two lesser known foes, lost to Mike Chambers, defeated Jimmy Taylor, bowed again to Becker, and, in his most recent start, knocked out Johnny Kerr, of New York, in nine rounds at McKeesport.

Billy says he always has done his best fighting against good opponents and he thinks he is due to upset the dope bucket and "take" McTiernan tonight.—HARRY KECK.

BRENT BATTLES M'TIERNAN AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Billy Brent

Tex McKenzie, of Sharpsville, and Jap Kho-ked-ou, Brighton Beach, and then [illegible] Vince Dundee, conqueror of Len Harvey, in his two most recent starts, at Motor Square Garden tonight goes to the post for Promoter Apples Meyers in the Moose Temple downtown in a battle in which he stands to lose much prestige in the event he does not come through with a decisive victory. He is taking on Billy Brent, ringed Negro middleweight of the Hill, and formerly of Chicago, who has been campaigning around here since last May. The affair not only promises but threatens, to sell out the place.

McTiernan is shooting for another big bout at the Garden and he realizes he must turn in a fancy and convincing victory over Brent to win that prize. And Brent boasts he always does his best work against the better class of opposition. Billy is in a good pot, with everything to gain and nothing to lose, the psychological burden is all on his opponent. And who knows but that it may turn out to be a good, old-fashioned bruising battle? And with the underdog having many supporters.

Promoter Meyers has lined up another action preliminary card. He has Al Becker, that rousing middleweight socker, of Sheraden, in the semi-final, against Joe Walters, of Springfield, O. Harry Fane, of the Hill, meets Al Ghan, of Columbus, O., in the second bout and Joey Bazone, of McKeesport, is in with Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, in the opener.

Between Rounds

Two world championship aspirants on the same card in the Duquesne Stadium tonight should be enough to attract a capacity crowd, even if the fans were not treated to the added attraction of a main bout and half a dozen other good ones. Tonight's the night, and the Stadium is the place.

Sanction of both the State Athletic Commission and the A. A. U. has been secured for Tuesday night's amateur show, which will be held in the Stadium. Ringside seats will go on sale next Wednesday at Gimbels, and the remainder of A. C. and patrons are requested to make their reservations in advance to be certain they will not be left out in the cold on the night of the show.

Benny Touchstone, of Detroit, and former of Florida, and Frank Novak, North Side heavyweight, have been matched for the main bout at McKeesport next Thursday night. A Golden Glove tournament will be staged there February 11-12.

EDDIE JACOBS ELIMINATED

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Four players from the United States swept into the semi-final round of singles in the Canadian indoor tennis championship yesterday. This afternoon, George Lott, of Chicago, will meet Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., in one semi-final round match, while John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., clashes with J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., winner of the title two years ago, in the other.

Bell's victims were Allen McMartin, of Montreal, 6-1, 6-0, and L. B. Rice, of Boston, 9-7, 6-4. Hall easily defeated W. M. Martin, St. Louis, 6-2, 6-1, and, in the quarter finals, ousted Eddie Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh, 6-3, 6-2. Jacobs eliminated Dr. Arthur W. Ham, of Toronto, 6-1, 8-6, in the second round.

JUDGE BEATEN BY GROSSMAN IN FAST GO

By the time Kenny Lee will be introduced and the semi-final of the evening, in all divisions are over, the crowd will see the Junior Welterweight Championship of the Metropolitan A. A. U. boxing championships [illegible] Kenny Adkins [illegible] attempt its second season of milling. Tomorrow the title event will wind up with final bouts in each class.

The opening days fighting last night was productive of some mighty interesting contests. 10 knockouts, three of them of the technical variety, marking the four-hour show which was attended by a capacity crowd.

GROSSMAN VICTOR

Jack Grossman, of the Y. M. H. A's came through to win the bouts in the feature bout, getting the decision over Gene Judge, of St. Boniface Lyceum, in a bout that went an extra round. It was the only fight to go beyond the regulation three-round limit.

It took Salvatore Collure, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, exactly 45 seconds, in the first round, to knock out Emil Tennant of the H. T. Little Club, Homestead, in the shortest fight on the program. Tennant went down after taking a solid right to his jaw.

A feature was produced when Ben Wainwright, of North Braddock, protested vigorously against what he claimed was a short count on him in the first round of his bout with Jimmy O'Bryan and was permitted to continue and finished up by knocking out his opponent in the third round.

Philly Preacher Signs for Pro Wrestling

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles H. Urban, of this city, who played football at the University of Pennsylvania, will try his hand at professional wrestling.

He has signed a contract offered him by Ray Fabiani, Philadelphia wrestling promoter, and soon will appear on a local mat against some worthy opponent.

SCARNEY EASY OPPONENT FOR BILLY JONES

Billy Jones, hard-hitting Negro light-heavyweight, of Philadelphia, punched Harold Scarney, of Niles, O., all about the ring at the Palisades, in McKeesport, last night for 10 rounds, easily winning the unanimous decision of the two judges, Lou Meininger, of Braddock, and Jock Simco, of McKeesport, together with the verdict of Referee Al Grayber.

Jones took nine of the 10 rounds, the final session going to Scarney by virtue of four or five hard rights he sent to the head of the former local boy. In the ninth, Jones backed Harold into a neutral corner and opened a barrage of rights and lefts to the stomach that sent Scarney to one knee, where he took an eight count. Scarney came in at 181, while Jones scaled 172.

Buddy McArthur, of McKeesport, defeated Henry Atell, of Girard, O., in a slam-bang six-round semi-final. Atell was floored for a count of nine in the third round, but he came back fighting. McArthur weighed 167¼ and Atell 161.

Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, southpawed his way to a decisive win over the rugged Al Monroe, Hill district Negro, in the second bout. The best go on the card, it was replete with action. Spiegel weighed 144. Monroe 140¾.

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport knocked out Joe Totti, a newcomer of Monessen, after 30 seconds of fighting in the second round.

FRENCH FAILED TO CO-OPERATE, SAYS PERSHING

Red Tape Serious Handicap To U. S. Forces; Dawes Made Purchasing Head

make a personal appeal to the minister concerned that orders be given for supplies or services already promised, and which therefore, we had every reason to expect should be furnished. Although our own departments at home are considered rather adept in the use of red tape, yet, to use an apt though inelegant comparison, the art of tying things up in official routine is in swaddling clothes in America as compared in France.

After a few contacts with the French system one marveled that they had managed to get along so well in supplying their armies during three years of war. The French are very intelligent, especially the educated class, and they have a highly organized government, but from the practical viewpoint they often become deeply involved in non-essential details and lose sight of the main objective.

I always likened the average French bureau official to a certain narrow type of quartermaster in our army who used to regard all quartermaster property under his charge as his own, and when he finally issued it always made the recipient feel that he was being especially favored.

However, such difficulties were not confined to dealings with the French. While not entirely disadvantageous, yet to be 3,000 miles from base was often much of a handicap. Our War Department officials could not always understand conditions as we did, and some of them were often none too willing to accept our views.

Views Discredited

A few of the chiefs of supply departments seemed to have the notion that it was their duty to negotiate our purchases abroad themselves. Without notice, they frequently placed orders with the French or British governments that duplicated those already given by my staff, and they did so even after having full information that we had ordered the same things.

So independent of control or suggestion had some bureaus of our War Department become that it was a long time before their chiefs would consent to leave such matters to their representatives at my headquarters acting under my authority.

Another source of confusion arose, especially in the beginning, through our War Department seeking the opinion of Allied representatives in Washington on my requests. After we had made an exhaustive study and sent specific recommendations to Washington it was not uncommon for the Chief of the General Staff or the head of a supply department to refer the matter to a foreign representative for his views, or those of his government. This official would naturally refer it back to his home office and it would eventually reach me through French channels with a request for my opinion.

Such procedure discredited my recommendations and placed my entire staff in an embarrassing position in the eyes of the foreign government concerned, to say nothing of the delay in complying with our requests, which, in many cases, were of almost vital importance. The following protest was cabled to Washington, but, as will be seen later, the practice was not at once discontinued:

"The Chief of Staff, Washington.

"Inquiry comes from . . . through French War Office as to my views on this subject (organization of our unit recommended three months before). Have replied that my views would always be sent my own superiors through proper channels. Seems unwise that our General Staff should permit such inquiries to be made, at least through a Civil Commissioner."

French Break Promise

This sort of thing also suggested to the French the idea, at least temporarily, of handling our business directly with Washington. An example is recalled in connection with procurement of horses. We had obtained from the French a definite promise to furnish us with 7,000 animals per month, beginning September 1.

Some 10 days after this arrangement was made the French War Office cabled the commissioner, Andre Tardieu, who in turn transmitted it as a sort of dictum to our War Department that it would be impossible for the French to furnish us any horses or mules and that our government should begin at once to supply them, although they offered to loan us 4,000 animals on the understanding that they would be replaced by November 1. This news was cabled to me and it was the first notice we had that the French did not intend to fulfill their promise.

M. Tardieu

In view of the uncertainty of obtaining more than a limited amount of ocean tonnage it was natural that we should procure abroad as large a proportion of supplies as possible, and our supply departments began at once to make inquiries to meet the demands for construction material, subsistence stores and engineering equipment.

Many sources of general supply had been developed by the French and we soon found ourselves not only in competition with them and the British, but our different departments also began to bid against each other.

Supplies Limited

In our army at home it had long been the custom for each department to make its own contracts without regard to the others, except that the Quartermaster was supposed to purchase and distribute certain military stores and other things that were in common use by the entire army. Our sources of supply at home during the years of peace had been so great and the needs of the army relatively so small that it had not been necessary to consider the possibility of shortage.

In France, however, it was imperative to regulate purchases in order to prevent a rise in prices that would add to the financial burdens of the Allies, who were much less able to pay than ourselves. Besides that, quantities of all kinds of supplies were limited.

In an effort to reach a solution I appointed a board of officers to study the question of purchases, and suggested that some agency might be created that would supervise procurement in general, and by co-ordinating our own nd Allied needs check the scramble for supplies.

In rather an extended discussion the board came to the conclusion that a centralized agency to control purchases would be illegal, and unanimously recommended the continuance of existing methods. But an emergency confronted us and it was no time to discuss technicalities.

Some business-like method had to be adopted to meet the situation. In other words, a remedy for an approaching chaotic condition resulting from the independent, uncontrolled action of the several services must be found.

To my mind the solution seemed to be merely a matter of co-ordination. Therefore, I tore up the recommendation and established a purchasing board to consist of one or more representatives of each service making purchases of any sort, including the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A.

Dawes Heads Board

Lieut. Col. Charles G. Dawes, 17th Engineers, well known as a man of large business experience, was appointed as the head of the board, the members of which were to meet together and make known their respective needs and then agree among themselves as to where and by which department each purchase was to be made, thus mutually assisting instead of competing with each other.

Lt. Col. Dawes

Under the arrangement co-operation with the French was established and the agency became increasingly effective in handling our procurement activities.

The use of railways for the movement of troops and supplies had never before attained any such proportions as in the World War and there was no service, except sea transportation, upon which we placed greater dependence for our success.

A board of engineers chosen by the War Department and headed by Maj. William Barclay Parsons, afterward colonel, 11th Engineers, went to France in May to study railroad conditions and later submitted an exhaustive report of their investigations and conclusions which fully agreed with the opinion of Col. Taylor, my chief of engineers, and his assistants. These independent investigations showed that the French railways, especially those that we planned to use, were sadly in need of physical rehabilitation.

Maj. Parsons

It was apparent that we could not depend entirely on the French without great risk of failure at a critical moment, and it was evident that if we expected the maximum efficiency in this service we must provide our own personnel as well as additional locomotives and cars, all to be as far as practicable under American management.

A separate transportation corps had never been provided in our Army; in fact there had been no one at all whose duty specifically embraced the management of railroads. In the Quartermaster Department a bureau issued transportation requests, routed personnel and freight and settled the accounts, and it was the understanding that in time of war the Army engineers would step in and take charge when railway operation should become necessary.

With this plan in view, commendable progress had been made toward both procurement and organization by Col. Taylor, and complete estimates for rolling stock and construction at ports, terminals and yards, including an accurate survey of building and equipment requirements, had been made under his direction by Maj. W. J. Wilgus, formerly vice president of the New York Central, afterward a colonel, who had been a member of the Parsons Board. These estimates without change served as a permanent guide for railway construction plans and material.

Maj. Wilgus

Seeks Experienced Man

As co-ordinate with the procurement and maintenance of material and equipment we were confronted with the vital question of organization for operation and management, but we had no officers in the regular service of sufficient experience in railway management to insure success. Therefore the evident course to pursue, to which the precedent of both British and French pointed the way, was to create a Transportation Corps immediately under the direction of some man of outstanding reputation in the railroad world. In accordance with the principle of obtaining the most competent men for important positions, the following cable was sent July 29:

"Have made thorough study of railroad situation and am convinced that operation of railroads must be under man with large experience in managing commercial railroads at home. Successful handling our railroad lines so important that ablest men in country should be selected. After almost disastrous results with inexperienced military men running railroads British selected ablest man could find to have charge transportation.

"Question here mainly one of physical operation and management in intimate relation with French who retain general control which is necessary to handle ordinary commercial traffic. Question of railroad transportation, of course, involves equipment maintenance and new construction at front as army advances, and should be practically independent department, although nominally under engineers. Railroad man chosen should be sent here without delay, together with three or four able assistants of his own selection. Later on it is believed these men should be given appropriate military rank."

Gen. Atterbury

In reply, the War Department recommended W. W. Atterbury, then general manager and now president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for the place, and I immediately requested that he be sent to France.

HALL HOLDS LEAD IN TITLE CUE TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP)—Allen Hall, of Chicago, the outstanding challenger of the dark horse brigade, today held a technical advantage in the close fight for the world three-cushion billiard championship.

The Chicago star had three straight victories and no defeats to his credit while his closest rivals, Arthur Thurnblad, another Chicagoan, and the veteran Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, had perfect records of two victories each. Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., the defending champion, stood in a tie for fourth position with Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, each having one victory and one defeat.

Layton proved he still is the man to beat for the title by trimming Charles E. Jordan, of Los Angeles, in his second start last night, 50 to 25, in 36 innings.

Hall polished off his third opponent, Scoville, 50 to 27, in 38 innings yesterday.

Reiselt, a former champion, also turned in a fine exhibition to defeat Dave Jacobs, of St. Louis, Southern champion, 50 to 36, in 50 innings.

Thurnblad had an opportunity to improve his standings today, however, as he was matched against Jordan, twice defeated in as many starts. Layton opposed Jacobs in the second, while Reiselt was matched against Denton.

Harrison's Statement Hints Possibility of Cut In Bank Rate.

Gov. Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve Bank testifying before the glass committee dealt at one stage with the matter of the bank rate as related to business and speculation. At one point Gov. Harrison stated he had wanted to go to a 6 per cent basis to control over-expansion and would have been willing to go to 7 per cent if necessary. Asked if the present 2 per cent bank rate would stimulate business or revive speculation, he expressed the belief that business must show more revival before interest in equities will expand and pointed out that the rate is in line with others. His statement that bankers should do all they can to remove any brake on revival "You should go as low as you can without inviting any abuse," naturally aroused interest in the possibilities of a further cut in the New York bank rate.

The situation in the acceptance market is the subject of considerable discussion in money circles at the moment. It is rather generally admitted that the recent reduction in bill rates, placing the 90-day maturities on a 1⅝-1¾ per cent basis, has not served to influence banks to dispose of any appreciable proportion of their holdings. In money circles gossip has it that bill rates probably have not yet reached rock-bottom and that it is likely another cut or two may be in store. In such quarters it is believed that the rate on 90-day bills will probably go to a 1⅜-1½ per cent basis before long. If such a revision should come to pass naturally it would carry the inference of a possible reduction in the present 2 per cent bank rate at New York.

Renewed strength in the railroad stock list yesterday was interpreted as indicating that the Interstate Commerce Commission decision in the case of the Fredericksburg, Richmond and Potomac, bearing on the recapture of excess earnings, is probably near at hand. The findings of the commission in this case, it is expected, will have far-reaching effect in modifying the situation which railroads enjoying earnings subject to recapture have faced right along. It is expected the decision will be much more favorable to the railroads in the matter of evaluating their properties than was the case in the St. Louis and O'Fallon litigation.

Underwood-Elliott-Fisher felt the business depression in 1930, and as a result, the earnings are not likely to be much over $5 a share on the common stock, compared with $10.08 a share reported for 1929. However, the company strengthened its financial position during the year. On November 30, last, cash and equivalent amounted to $8,533,000, compared with $5,894,500 at the end of 1929, and the net current assets were $18,250,700, against $16,921,710 on December 31, 1929. Many operating economies which are regarded as of a permanent nature were instituted last year, and under normal conditions will be reflected in larger per share earnings.

Houses close to Allis Chalmers estimate that the company will show net income of close to $3,773,000 for 1930, equal to nearly $3 a share on the 1,258,400 shares outstanding. That would compare with $4,330,888, or $3.44 a share in 1929, and with $2,933,910, or $2.33 a share in 1928. Ability to show a decrease of only 13 per cent from the record 1929 earnings reflects the good position of the company in its line, as well as the control which the management has exercised over operating expenses. More attention is being given to the fact that the company entered the current year with unfilled orders of more than $13,000,000, compared with $12,872,000 on January 1, 1930.

If improvement comes in the automobile industry this year, as some authorities have been predicting, Murray Body is in a position to benefit immediately. Interests identified with the automobile and accessory industries have given the prospects of the company considerable study, and are likely to adopt a long position in the stock at the first sign of definite improvement in the motor trade.

CIGAR STORES IN SNARL

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The American Tobacco Company has discontinued selling its products direct to the United Cigar Stores Company, but in a telegram to jobbers stated that it has no objection to their selling to United under such terms and conditions as are satisfactory to them.

This action, which was said to eliminate a special discount to United, was regarded in financial circles as a possible development in the cigaret price war which broke out in New York City yesterday when price reductions on popular brands, or special merchandise inducements, were announced by United and Schulte Retail Stores Corporation.

The Schulte Company announced it had reduced the price of the popular brands from two packages for 25 cents to 11 cents a package "to meet a special sales combination merchandise offer made by another leading cigaret chain."

At the same time United Cigar Stores announced that for one week it would sell some popular brands in a special combination merchandise offer at reduced prices. The combination, said to sell usually at 65 cents, is being offered at 50 cents.

The merchandise offer does not include American Tobacco Company products. An official of United said the company is continuing to sell American Tobacco Products in its stores.

STOCK MARKET MIRROR OF THOUGHT

Collective Financial Mind Speaks Through Ticker; Seen as Good Index

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—How good a forecaster of business conditions is the stock market?

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, raised the question in a speech last night before the New York State Bankers Association here.

As a matter of fact, the stock market merely reflects the consensus of present thinking and feeling concerning business probabilities. The collective financial mind speaks through the stock ticker, which reflects not only actualized truth but also whims, fantasies, imaginings, fears, prejudices and misconceptions.

Mr. Rukeyser.

GOOD INDEX

Emotional factors tend to interfere with the market as an accurate mirror of authentic economic conditions, but in time these interferences iron themselves out and in the long run the stock market gives a good index of what is going on.

Carl Snyder, statistician of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, challenging the familiar assumption that the stock market anticipates business conditions by six months, contends that the market follows instead of precedes significant turns in business. Mr. Snyder's viewpoint was validated by the events in the crucial year 1929, when business turned downward nearly three months before the bull market in selected stocks reached its peak. Since the panic, the market has given no reliable, clear cut business forecasts. The rally in the winter and spring of 1930 gave false hopes of early business recovery, which were not fulfilled.

The market reflects what is in the minds of buyers and sellers, irrespective of whether it happens to be the truth or not.

In setting forth the official stock exchange position on these moot questions, Mr. Whitney said:

"There has been much controversy recently as to whether the stock market does or does not forecast business conditions. But the public, with a sure instinct for practical truth, has little doubt that it closely reflects them.

"Sometimes the stock market is spoken of as if it were all bottled up in a building in Wall street. Actually it is a creation of the whole American people, and it responds to those strong human motives of hope and fear which sweep through American public opinion. The stock market constitutes a supreme single expression of modern economic life."

Pere Marquette Extra Payment Doubted

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. December was a poor month for Pere Marquette Railway and figures when released are likely to show substantial deficit after taxes and charges. Earnings for the full year 1930 are likely to be below the $2.98 a share earned on the common stock for the first 11 months.

With 1930 earnings below $3 a common share compared with regular dividends totaling $6 and extra of $2 paid last year, directors probably will give serious consideration to omission of a $2 extra dividend for 1931. That extra has been paid every year since 1926 and in recent years has been declared at the February meeting of the board.

Tracy Accused of Lying About Robbery

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert shares her home and fortune with her half-sister, Kitty, whom she found destitute in New York's underworld. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance. Believing Jim to be a fortune-hunter, Connie, to save Kitty, enlists the aid of Duke Garson, Kitty's friend and underworld intelligence man. He warns Connie that her butler is a crook and that her mother should guard her pearls. Later Duke is about to declare his love for Connie when Jim appears. He claims he was held up and is afraid to go home. Connie invites him to stay. Duke doubts Jim's story. That night, Mrs. Calvert's pearls are stolen. Duke questions the maid about them. The maid doubts Kitty's honesty. Mrs. Calvert becomes ill after the excitement.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XLI

The sulky expression of Jim Tracy's face deepened into anger at Duke Garson's command that he not leave the house. Kitty looked from one man to the other in surprise; affection was in her glance for Tracy, bewilderment lit her eyes as she stared at Garson.

"Do you mean you object to my going?" Tracy asked, sharply.

"Under the circumstances, I do," Garson told him levelly. "We are in the midst of a difficult situation, and I should think you would want to stay on the chance you might be able to help us out."

This seemed to mollify Tracy, but there was still irritation in his voice. "Oh, well, if you put it that way, I'll be glad to wait. Only I'm going to have a little drink. How about you, Kitty?"

Insists Upon Drinking

"What do you want to start drinking the first thing in the morning for?" Kitty asked him, puzzled. "I'm not going to drink with you and neither is Duke."

"Aw, be a good fellow," Tracy threw a careless arm around Kitty and gave her a squeeze. "No? Well, I'm going to have another shot anyway. Just a little, mild celebration all by myself."

"But why?" Kitty demanded.

"Because you are so sweet," he laughed. "You won't join me, Garson?"

"No, thanks."

Tracy, with a slight swagger, with a freedom based upon long familiarity, had no hesitancy in helping himself to the liquor kept in store for the guests as a part of the lavish hospitality of the house.

"You don't like Jim do you?" Kitty asked Garson.

"He's all right, I suppose. You're crazy about him aren't you?"

"I'll ... I am!" Kitty returned enthusiastically. "You know me, Duke. I never ran after the men, but this boy makes a wreck out of my existence. Honest, I don't know what's the matter with me. When you tell me somebody stole Mrs. Calvert's pearls, it just goes in one ear and out the other. The only important thing I can think about is Jim."

"Well, watch your step," Garson advised her. "Remember, you've got your whole lifetime ahead of you to get set. No use being in a hurry about anything."

The return of Connie interrupted them, yet it was just as well for Garson to realize the futility of giving advice one way or the other to a girl in the throes of infatuation. Connie came into the room slightly downcast.

"As far as I'm concerned I'd just as soon not own a pearl or a diamond, or any jewel as long as I live," she said pessimistically. "They cost a lot of money and are always getting lost or stolen. That's one advantage the downright poor have, they don't have to worry over money or property or possession. I'm convinced the only free people on earth are the poor."

Speaks of Police

Jim Tracy joined them; stood with his feet spread apart and his hands in the pockets of his coat.

"Well, what's the verdict? Where do we go from here? Has Mr. Garson evolved any solution of the mystery in the last few minutes?"

"I don't suppose he has, Jim," Connie said, looking straight at Tracy. "If it didn't seem such a scandalous waste of money I'd say we ought to let the whole business go hang."

Garson shook his head. "You can't do that. Unpleasant facts can't be dodged. Besides, there are three of us here—Kitty, Mr. Tracy and myself—who are obliged to do everything possible to find the thief and try to get the pearls back. It's not pleasant to say, but I'm sure that each of us would come under suspicion if the police were called in."

"Nonsense!" Connie exclaimed. "You can speak for yourself, if you like, Garson," Tracy said, abruptly. "I decline to be listed as a suspicious character myself."

"Nevertheless, I'm afraid my statement must stand," Garson told him directly. "Kitty and I are virtually strangers in this house and our past associates have been none too good. Rest assured, we'd certainly be suspected by the police. As for yourself, Mr. Tracy, your fairy story about being held up last night would be almost evidence of guilt."

Tracy suddenly paled slightly. "What do you mean, fairy story? Are you insinuating I lied about it?"

Watched Jim

"Not insinuating—I'm telling you you lied about it," Garson told him, his voice restrained and perfectly level. "I happened to be watching you when you drove to the crossroads, turned and switched off your lights and came back in less than half an hour. You did not drive as you said, three miles away, which may have some bearing on Mrs. Calvert's pearls. I don't think you could explain how you concocted such a story. Was it because you hoped to create imagination that two robbers were in the house last night?"

Tracy looked at him with fire in his eyes. "All of that," he said warningly, "is a damn lie."

"I don't mind being called a liar by you," Garson remarked. "It won't take me very long, I think, to establish the truth of what I said. You claim your wallet was stolen, do you?"

"What are you driving at?" Tracy demanded, angrily.

"Just this. I think your whole story is a fabrication. If I'm right, you still have your wallet in your possession right now. Suppose you turn out your pockets just to prove to these young ladies, if you like, that I am a damn liar."

Kitty looked at Garson angrily, the blue-violet of her eyes deepened in color almost to black as her feeling welled up.

"What do you think you are pulling off on Jim?" she asked Garson. "Are you trying to implicate him in this business?"

"Oh, please don't let's act this way!" Connie exclaimed. "Nobody suspects Jim; it's ridiculous."

"Nevertheless," Garson said, calmly, "I think he is able to produce his wallet right now if he likes and prove to us he lied about the holdup. Let us see that wallet, please, Mr. Tracy."

Garson stepped forward and as he did Tracy retreated from him slowly.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Lucky Rube

"'Lo, Abner!" Rube Sawyer looked up from his work of finishing an axe handle with his pocket knife, to greet his visitor.

"'Lo, Rube! What yuh doin'?

"It's lucky ye asked me, Abner. I'm makin' a axe handle."

"Say, Rube, I jes' been to town."

"Yuh hev? Now, thet's lucky! What did yuh see?

"'Tain't so much what I see'd as what I hyeard, Rube."

"I reckon. Now, what was thet, I wonder?"

"Goin' t'be one o' them airships down to Webster tomorrow, as takes folks to ride up in the air."

"Gee, thet's lucky! What time?"

"All day, I reckon."

"Goin' down, Abner?"

"I 'lowed to."

"Thet's lucky. Come by?"

It was five miles to Webster, all the way down hill, but the walking was good. Abner came by at daylight, and he and Rube set off down the road at a good pace.

Rube Sawyer was 20 years old, and knew every trail, peak and ravine in the whole Cullowhee section, could clip a squirrel out of the top of a chestnut oak tree 300 yards across a water-worn ravine, with his grandfather's old buck-and-ball rifle, and never bat an eye. But Rube never had used up much of the energies of life with the things called manual labor. Barring the whittling of an axe handle occasionally, and the chopping of a little fire wood when necessary, he had not often strained a muscle. The most of his time was spent in roaming the hills, trapping, fishing and hunting.

Satisfied With Life

"It's a great old world, Abner!" Rube was swinging along at a pace that carried him a good four miles an hour.

"Yes, Rube; I opine it is."

"Now, hit's lucky thet somebody invented them airships. Ef they hadn't now, we wouldn't be goin' down to Webster this mornin'."

That's so, I reckon."

"Wonder what they charge for goin' up in one o' them things?"

"Dunno, but I hyeard it was five dollars."

"Gee! Why thet's as much as ten skunk hides, Abner."

"Jes about, I reckon."

"It's lucky thet you an' me don't car nothin' about ridin', huh?"

"Like as not."

The two young mountaineers now swung around the head of one ravine after another in silence for sometime. Meanwhile the sun had risen, and had produced many a sparkling jewel from the dew drops of the night which clung to the shrubbery along the mountain roadway.

"Where does the thing rise from Abner; I reckon you don't know?"

"I hyeard it's goin' to rise from Satterfield's pasture."

"Well now, thet's lucky, 'cause there ain't no bushes in the way down there."

A little while later Rube and Abner walked out upon an open space at the head of Ike Satterfield's pasture. Both stopped in their tracks, and for a moment held their breath at the sight which was before them, for the airship already was on the ground, and a crowd had gathered. Rube's hand crept outward, and he grasped Abner's sleeve.

"God-a-mighty, Abner," he exclaimed; "it shore is lucky we come!"

"I reckon so."

Pilot Agrees

Rube crept forward with much the same tactics he would have used in creeping upon a wild turkey. A position was secured at the edge of the crowd, whence he and his companion might see the entire performance, from the act of taking on the passengers to that of rising into the air. Rube watched the take-off with the keenest interest; and as the plane rose gracefully before his eyes, a little quiver went zig-zagging down his backbone.

"Abner, it gives yuh a cur'ous feelin', don't it?"

"It shore does, Rube."

The plane had made a number of trips and business was growing a little dull, when Ike Satterfield spied Rube Sawyer at the edge of the crowd. He crossed the field in the direction of the young mountaineer, and presently waved a hand in the air, as he called out:

"Hey, Lucky Rube! What you doin' here?"

"Don't ye want to ride?"

"Dunno. Wantin' an' havin' is some different, yuh know?"

"What's the matter? Ain' sold no coon skins lately?"

"None since week afore last."

"Look here, Rube; I got a trade wi' thet flyin' feller, and ef you want to ride, I'll git him to take ye free o' charge on my account."

"Thet's lucky! I'd jes' as soon ride with him as any other chap, I reckon."

"Wait till I come back." Satterfield went forward to the cockpit where the pilot was waiting.

Satterfield motioned for Rube. When the latter came, the pilot asked:

"Ever been up before?"

"Now, it's lucky ye asked me thet; so's I could tell ye, I ain't never been up in one o' them things afore."

The ascent gave Rube a peculiar thrill, he hardly could sit still. "It's lucky I come," he was saying to himself, as the machine mounted into the sky.

Suddenly the nose of the plane shot upward at a terrific speed, as if it would pierce the very heavens. Rube's hands clutched at one thing, then another, and a sickening chill went down his spinal column. Up, up, up! Then there was a mighty whirl, and once more they were sailing outward over the hills. Rube held his breath.

"It's lucky we ain't dropped nowhere yit," he mused.

Presently the machine turned tail, and shot toward the earth like a rocket, down, down, down, until apparently its nose would bury itself in the bed of a ravine. But in a moment it had swung upward again, describing half a dozen graceful curves in the air. Then it began a spiral motion which fairly caused the brains in Rube's head to sizzle. In the meantime they were going farther out over the hills, and higher into the air, until the earth with its trees and cliffs looked like a toy landscape laid out in flower garden. Now they were looping the loop again, and Rube could not tell when his head was up or when it was down. He could not understand it, for he had seen no such capers as these when the other passengers rode. The machine next described a series of circles, climbing still higher into the air. Suddenly there was a drop of the plane and its occupants, and Rube's teeth went together with a snap.

"Gee, it's lucky I didn't have my tongue betwixt my teeth," Rube muttered to himself.

Plane Crashes

Presently the machine seemed to roll for a moment, then shot upward again. But at that instant something happened. There was the sound of a terrific crash, and Rube clapped his hands to his ears. A wing of the plane had cracked up, and it was now hanging like the broken wing of a bird; and a sickening, wobbly glide toward the mountainside began.

"My God, we're gone!" exclaimed the pilot.

"It's lucky we ain't hit yet," consoled Rube, as he wondered what new kind of stunt was in preparation.

But there was no upturn to the latest aerial gymnastics of the airship, as it dashed towards the earth, down, down, down, with the swiftness of a meteor shooting across the sky. A moment later there was another horrible crash, as the machine went through the tree tops, terminating with a jolt and a smash which left little of the bird-like thing which had swept from the ground a few minutes before, except a crushed and twisted mass of airship material.

Rube was conscious. He wiped some blood from his eyes with the back of his hand, and crawled from among the wreckage. He stood up, and looked about him. Not 50 yards away was a cabin which looked wonderfully familiar to him.

"Well now, thet's lucky!" he exclaimed. "I'm t'home again; an' yonder's my axe at the wood pile. I'll git it an' chop out what's left o' the poor devil as was flyin' this thing."

Disabled Veterans

Proper Hospital Facilities Should Be Provided by the Government for Pennsylvania's Sick Soldiers.

Bulletin No. 15, just issued by the American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania, calls attention to a situation well described by James J. Deighan, department adjutant, as "alarming."

Pennsylvania's disabled veterans are being shamefully neglected.

Instead of being cared for in government hospitals close enough to their homes to permit friends and relatives to visit them frequently, 860 have been placed in institutions outside of the state.

In addition, 610 have been placed, not in government hospitals but in state and county asylums and almshouses.

The American Legion rightly demands that Pennsylvania's disabled soldiers be cared for in United States Veterans' Bureau hospitals in Pennsylvania. Public opinion will uphold the demand.

The Swick bill adding 200 beds to the Aspinwall hospital and the other measures for enlarging Pennsylvania's hospitals for veterans should be acted upon promptly by Congress.

The First Oil Well

The American Petroleum Institute Has a Commendable Idea In the Plan to Honor Col. Drake.

Oil is being pumped through a new pipe line nearly 1,100 miles long from Oklahoma to storage tanks on Neville Island.

That development, announced yesterday, is but one of a multitude of extraordinary things that have resulted from the drilling of a well by Col. E. L. Drake near Titusville, Pa., in 1859.

It was the world's first commercial oil well. Crude petroleum had previously been found in springs. But it took the vision and assurance of Col. Drake to give the world petroleum in the quantities now demanded.

The American Petroleum Institute proposes to make a national shrine of the original Drake well. Its program calls for the development and maintenance of the site as a national park.

It is a commendable idea.

Stream Pollution

Gov. Pinchot's Support Encourages Hope That Something May Be Done to Remedy Conditions.

The extent to which the rivers of Western Pennsylvania are polluted with sewage and industrial waste is said to be unmatched anywhere in the world.

Pittsburgh Chapter of the Izaak Walton League states in a bulletin that the prolonged drought has made the situation still worse, and announces that the entire strength of the organization will be given to the introduction and support of a bill similar to the McCrossin-Lose measure of the 1929 session, which failed of passage.

Gov. Pinchot's stand on the matter encourages the hope that the measure may succeed this time. He said during the campaign, and repeated in his inaugural address, that he hopes "to stop stream pollution and empower cities, boroughs and townships to protect their own water."

Rousing a Sleeping Giant

Progressive Leadership Needed to Rebuild American Railroad Systems to Conform With Present-Day Wants.

What the American railroads need most is a progressive viewpoint.

The country is crying out for a rebirth of the spirit of adventure which animated the original railroad builders.

Radical surgery and courage are needed to rebuild railroad systems so that they will conform to present-day wants and opportunities.

A program for setting the carriers free from old fogyism would impart new enthusiasm to the whole structure of business.

At this particular stage of the cycle, a new vision of railroad development would give American business a rallying point.

A candid analysis of the troubles of the carriers discloses that inertia and timidity on the part of railroad sponsors turned the once flourishing business of railroading into a declining industry.

Railroading waned as a result of standpattism. Passenger trains, by way of illustration, ignored the popular demand for quickened speed.

Decadence inevitably followed the tacit belief by routine railroad presidents that the industry had already fulfilled its ultimate potentialities of growth.

Railroad corporations are now paying for the sins of decades of lack of inventiveness, research and planned development.

Instead of planning ahead boldly, latter day railroad managers have sought, through patchwork, to adapt middle of the nineteenth century transportation systems to the altered needs of the present.

Rich rewards lie ahead for modern-minded executives who will think creatively of railroads as an effective means for knitting the country more closely together. Coast to coast systems—long the unrealized dreams of pioneers like the Goulds, the Harrimans, and the Hills—would be in keeping with present-day nationalizing tendencies.

The Hearst newspapers think that the time has come for freeing the railroads of the legal fetters, which have discouraged progress.

After long bickering, there is at length virtual agreement among the main trunk lines of the east or a piecemeal merger extending from the Atlantic seaboard to the middle west. This constitutes a significant step in the right direction.

The ultimate goal, however, should be vast transportation systems, co-ordinating under unified ownership and management, steam railways, motor vehicles, pipe lines and boats, which would offer uninterrupted rapid service from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian border.

Properly supervised transportation giants could offer the public improved service at lower rates. It is the part of wise and honest government to see that the public does receive these benefits.

The time is ripe for new railroad setups. The men, the materials, and the capital needed are abundantly available, waiting only for progressive leadership.

Meantime, inertia, backwardness and political prejudices are conspiring against the material welfare of the American people, as the nation's transportation arteries continue to harden.

Matrimonial Candidates

I have never held with those modernists who howled for woman's right to do the courting and proposing. I have never even agreed with Bernard Shaw, who claims that woman DOES do the choosing while poor unsuspecting man is the passive victim in the matrimonial racket.

I have seen girls set out to capture a man by the go-getting method, but I have never seen it WORK. It is not Mrs. Grundy but Nature—masculine nature—that puts the taboo on the pursuing woman. It's just a quirk of contrariness somewhere in his sub-consciousness which makes him leap back the moment a woman leaps forward.

But I DO believe that, if it were possible for women to do the selecting in marriage, it would be far more sanely and efficiently done. Because women like a man for what he IS and for what he can DO, not for what he pretends to be. Whereas men take a woman at her face value and like her for what she APPEARS to be. That's why a woman's LOOKS are so important.

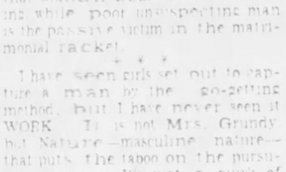
If a girl wears her hair like a madonna and has the manner of a sweet, modest violet, a man never stops to reflect that behind that lovely mask there may be a dumbbell or a hard-boiled egg.

* * *

But, as far as men are concerned, every woman is from Missouri. No big, well-fed male animal can bluff her into thinking him a "hero," unless he has a record to prove it.



A woman loves a man for his character and accomplishments not for the way his hair curls back from his brow or the way his lashes sweep his cheek.

In school and college all the women fall hopelessly in love with the conquering athlete who walks off with the game or the cup, not with the romantic looking boy, who wears the prettiest neckties.

In the business office half the feminine force are in love with the keen, stern human-dynamo, who puts over the big deals, and whom they adoringly call "The Boss."

Women love strength and bravery and intelligence in men.

It is MEN who do the choosing, today, yesterday and forever. And as long as they continue to pick a wife by the eye, marriage will be a lottery. But there! If women could do the choosing, all the NICE men would be married! And probably snapped up by the wrong girls!

Isn't It So?

A two-year-old automobile is one nobody washes.

A new broom may sweep clean, but it always wears out.

Corn liquor is a kind of corn borer that "bores from within."

Most students after getting out of college wish they had got more out of it.

The people who never cry over spilled milk probably don't like milk anyhow.

The easiest way to flatter a woman is to talk about all the hearts she has broken.

To be successful it isn't enough to take advantage of your opportunities. You must originate them.

THE SCIENTIFIC DECALOGUE

By Archibald Henderson

The purpose of science is to discover those principles in the operation of natural phenomena which may be accurately termed laws. Although science just now is discovering certain types of physical behavior which appear to be erratic, the fault lies less in the phenomena themselves probably, than in the explanation.

The machinery devised by science for explaining the phenomena, whether the machinery consists of actual models or mathematical equations, is clearly imperfect. It doesn't cover all the facts, but only the parts of them which are known. It is the unknown facts which have not been accounted for that throw a monkey wrench into the machinery.

In spite of these puzzling phenomena—such as ether, quanta, radiant energy, light pulses, the principle of indeterminacy, certain exceptions to the doctrine of causality—it is, nevertheless, the belief of scientists generally that nature is governed by law.

Regarding natural law, W. W. Campbell says: "If I were asked to name and describe the most wonderful fact known to man, my reply would be: So far as our observations and experiences go, every particle of matter in the physical universe is endowed with the property and necessity of obeying the fundamental laws of nature.

Our universe of stars, our own star and our earth in all its parts have been developed throughout long ages to their present state under the guidance and compulsion of perfectly definite and apparently simple laws. We have no reason to suppose that these laws are ever set aside or varied in the slightest degree."

From time to time, science finds it necessary and highly desirable to take stock of the new laws which have been discovered. R. A. Millikan now puts forward a list of the Ten Scientific Commandments, upon which rest the latest advances in modern physics. These laws have been discovered within the past century. They furnish the basis for argument about many new phenomena, notably the cosmic ray, the special object of Millikan's study.

First came the principle of conservation of energy. When Count Rumford found that heat was a mode of motion, he put his finger upon the principle of the equivalent of heat and energy.

Second, the famous principle of randomness, generally known as the "second law of thermodynamics." This is the foundation for the theory of the heat-death of the universe.

Third, the law of evolution which has had its greatest triumphs in the field of biology.

Fourth, the discovery that elements are not immutable. Elements change, notably radium into lead.

Fifth, the discovery that the earth had an origin not infinitely remote in time. There is much evidence to show that the earth is at least 1,500,000,000 years old.

Sixth, the interconvertibility of mass and energy. Mass is a function of velocity. Mass may be interpreted as energy, and vice versa.

Seventh, all 92 elements were found to be made up of the same building material, the "brick" being the hydrogen atom.

Eighth, the discovery that the enormous amount of energy generated by sun and stars is due to the breaking down of the interior structure of matter through the self-destructive pairing of positive and negative particles of electricity.

Ninth, the Aston discovery that atom-building is now taking place in the remote regions of space. Atoms are continually being annihilated while other atoms are being built.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You say you can't forget?

Well, what of it? Haven't you gumption enough to stand your own memories? Haven't you sense enough to turn all your memories—good or bad, bitter or glad—to advantage? Sense enough to see that memories are the stuff life grows in?

You say you can't forget. Go out to the soil. Take some of it into your hand. Study that soil. The soil doesn't forget, either. It has never forgotten anything. Everything that has ever happened to man since the beginning of time is in the soil. Tears are in it. Sweet is in it. Blood and dead bones and carrion are in it. Flowers are in it, too. And sunshine and fruit and sweet gums and the fragrant dust of a million springtimes. All that went on in life—all the successes, all the mistakes, the good things and the bad things, the bitter things and the glad things—they are still there in the soil. And the life of today grows in the dust of the past.

Next June's roses will root in last June's muck. Think about that. Let yourself be touched by the drama and poetry of that fact—by the wonder and mystery and terrible power of the soil. You are touched, aren't you? Then why aren't you touched by the drama and poetry of yourself, by the wonder and power and mystery of the soul?

For soils and souls are all of a piece. They are accumulation. Accumulations of experience. And that which is, and is to be, springs from that which was.

You say you can't forget. Don't try to forget! Try to remember. Face your memories and try to understand them. Understand your memories and use them. Use them as soil for a greater growth.

You had a great tragedy? Death took the one you loved best and broke your heart? Then be glad that you could love greatly enough to have a broken heart. Be proud because your life once held such glory. Walk as one who has known great honor. And because you have been initiated into sorrow, be tender and tolerant for those who blunder in pain.

You made a great mistake? What if you did? It would have been infinitely more tragic if you had never made mistakes—if you had never dared to risk life enough to make a mistake. Be glad you dared risks. Stop snivveling and sneaking. Be grateful for the wisdom you gathered from that mistake. Use that wisdom. Like the more abundantly, because of your dearly bought wisdom and strength.

You say you can't forget. Don't try to forget. Treasure your memories. Treasure the deep, black soil that you built with your tears and terrors, your misery and mistakes. Weep new tears. Make new mistakes. Risk new tragedies. Deepen that soil of memory and grow in it!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

God's Pity

Man's pity is a little thing,
So circumspect, so small.
Contained within a narrow ring
And bounded by a wall.
It names the rigid terms it asks
And with a will of steel
It sets offenders cruel tasks
And grants no last appeal.

God's pity is a boundless sea
Wherein the soul can cast
The burden of its misery
For all its vices past.
To every honest penitent
God's pity offers peace.
For anguished souls it holds content.
In it all conflicts cease.

Man's pity mocks at those who seek
Too slight it is, too frail!
But in God's pity all the weak
Find hope that will not fail.

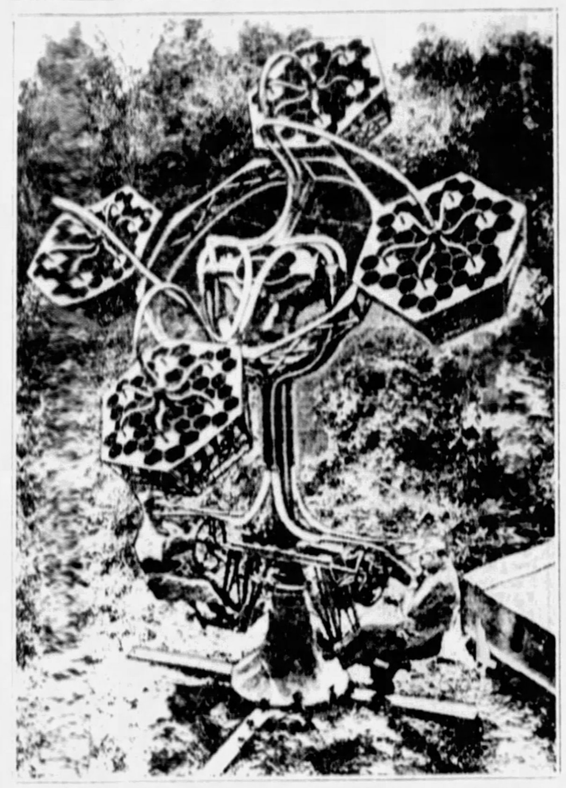
Gigantic Ears of Science

They Would Detect a Distant Airplane's Approach.



A FRENCH WAR INVENTION "TO LISTEN"

This strange picture represents a gigantic scientific "ear" invented by French scientists for the French fighting airship force.

The machine enables men below to hear any enemy aircraft at a great distance and also to locate their position in the sky.

With such a machine fliers could be sent to find the approaching enemy before they could reach and destroy Paris. At least that is the theory.

We have in America an "aero detector," consisting of four huge trumpets, or loud listeners, mounted on a wheeled platform.

This airplane detector is said to detect the presence of aircraft at a great distance.

However, it wouldn't do us much good now if enemy airplanes were approaching, crossing one of the oceans or one of our borders, unless we had the right fleet of fighting planes to meet such an invading force. And we have no adequate protection.

The French can use their hearing ear, with many cells of strange scientific construction, advantageously. It tells them when their own fleets are approaching from different points and where the wireless can reach them and direct their movements in accordance with the story that this ear tells.

The French have 5,000 fighting planes and are constantly building more and better planes.

They haven't our 120,000,000 of population. They haven't our gigantic wealth, or one-tenth of our natural resources.

But they HAVE intelligence enough to know that the WAY TO BE SAFE IS TO BE READY.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Thoughts while strolling: Peter Arno looking clubmen with droopy mustaches and tired eyes of a blood-hound. I like to pronounce the name of that art dealer—Knoedler. Jewel studded suspenders in Cartier's.

The Rialto's tallest playwright—Robert E. Sherwood. W. W. Hawkins, a Springfield, Mo., boy, who made good in the city. More Shakespearian plays. The future of ham is Hamlet. Those one-buttoned great coats like Jimmie Walker wears. Bruce Barton could pose for the clothing ads.—wavy hair and everything.

Gloomy ladies who moan they never had a childhood. And attend plays stressing frustration. Something comfortable about the name of Anne. The bored salesmen in that 57th street yacht store. Nothing looks so hopeless as the expression of a man stepping into a patrol wagon.

Sidney Lenz and Sigmund Spaeth look alike. Fred Detwiller, the painter. Lecture topic: "After 50 what?" I'll take an open fire, the patter of rain and a mystery story. What became of lads who smoked themselves pale coloring meerschaum pipes? A debutante hoop-de-doo: Attaching a single orchid to a bracelet.

Hard to beat a navy blue and white polka dot tie. Like those that Noel Coward wears. The Grand Central newsboy who wears spats. Park Row's best known reporter—Martin Green. One of those sacred white female zebus of society—waddling into a bank. The high-nosed soandso.

Nothing impresses me more than liveried footman and chauffeur up front in a block long limousine. The legless man and his friendly Boston Wonder how long it takes Mr. Coolidge to write his column? And does he read it to his wife, poor thing!

There's a country squire look about J. P. Morgan with all his yachts and what not. And somebody tells me he likes vaudeville. Once met him late at night walking on ship deck and started to speak. But instead popped out in a sudden Gethsemane-like perspiration.

At a party the other evening, the bachelor host ran out of cocktail ingredients. He dispatched an apartment house hall boy for a flagon of gin. When it came he held it aloft and cried: "This probably holds all the cooking receipts of Lucretia Borgia, but is everybody willing to take a chance?" Save for three on the water wagon, everybody was. I'd like to stretch a barbed paragraph here about the folly of the incident, but most of us have taken the same chances with no deadly results. Drinkers cannot be frightened out of their cups. This is all twisted up, but if I stop to straighten it out, I'll miss the mails!

Those wincing at number 13 may stage a little fancy shuddering for the Sobol Brothers, whose gas filling stations have become a sculptured fixture of the New York horizons. There are two brothers—Ita Jacob Sobol and Benjamin Sobol. Each has 13 letters to his name.

There are 13 letters to the firm name Sobol Brothers also a trade mark. Their mother was the 13th child born on the 13th of the month. The number on the Sobol Brothers automobile is 13-13 preceded by various letters. Their main office is 1313 5th avenue.

Their familiar greasing slogan "Men Who Know" contains 13 letters and the idea for a chain of filling stations came to them in 1913. They operate 91 stations or seven times 13. Their main station has 13 pumps and 26 employes—twice 13. And if you think I'm going to keep on unraveling a free puff this way you are plum silly.

A group of first nighters were in a lobby huddle. An ermined night club hostess pranced by, chirping: "Scandalizing the ladies, eh?"

"Only the ladies," beamed one. "Pass on in peace!"

In groping about despairingly for a final paragraph for this unsalty critique it occurs to me my grandfather used to say every true gentleman should learn to dance, play a fiddle and understand Latin. I got as far as a little spring-kneed two-stepping and "Over the Waves" on a mandolin, and then broke down completely and became a newspaperman. Dear old grampa!
